Developer appeals rescinding of subdivision

By Arlene Surprenant
There were no easy answers for the Wilmington Planning Board Tuesday night.

Besides wrestling with the problem of how to complete roadways in the Middlesex Pines subdivision in the shortest time possible, members also had to face the fact that developer Patrick Cone of Elm Square Builders might obtain a restraining order to stop the town from using bond monies for the work.

Board members were notified at the end of September that Cone was appealing their decision to rescind the subdivision and take the $80,000 bond.

In his complaint, Cone's attorney Reginald Marden stated that the planning board refused to release money from the bank as the work progressed, which is contrary to Mass. General Law. He claimed that the board demanded the bond from the Andover Savings Bank without prior written notice to Cone and he added the board's action was illegal, "beyond its authority," and caused Cone "irreparable harm."

Marden said Cone was seeking to have the planning board return all monies to the Andover Savings Bank or hold the funds until the matter is decided in court.

Town Counsel Alan Altman will represent the board in Cambridge Superior Court this Friday at 9:30 a.m. to show cause why the restraining order should not be granted.

In the meantime, planners made a motion to seek the authorization of Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski to place a leveling coat of the subdivision roadways and install light poles before the onset of winter. Members felt this was their best recourse to satisfy frustrated homeowners because it would provide a smooth road surface and help avoid puddles. The action, however, depends on whether or not Cone is successful in obtaining a restraining order which could tie up both the funds and the work.

Both Douglas Sousa and Chuck Johnston were present to learn answers to several questions including how long the bidding process would take. They came away with few answers, despite the fact that Town Engineer Robert Higgins had provided a time line planners called "inadequate."

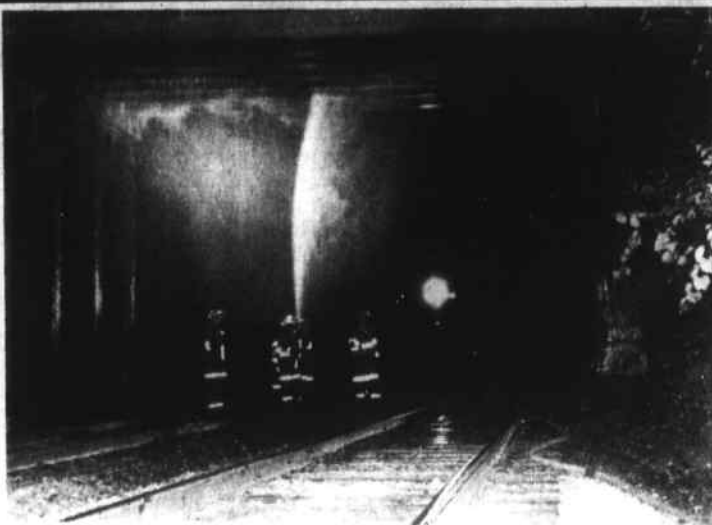

"I'm not very pleased with this; I suspect you're not either," said board chairman Carole Hamilton, who later tried to pin Higgins down to a specific timeframe which could be easily interpreted.

Higgins said because of so many variables, including a "backlog" of work and some "very volatile subdivisions" coming up, it would be hard to predict when the work could be done. However, he added, for "a great deal of money," the road surface work could be done before the onset of winter.

Fire hits hall at St. Dorothy's

Fire of uncertain origin hit the old Thompson Hall of St. Dorothy's Church approximately 1 a.m. last Thursday morning. The hall at one time served as the church for the Silver Lake area. It has recently been used for Boy Scout meetings.

Firefighters were able to save the structure, but it was heavily damaged.

Bridge fire

The Butters Row bridge was damaged by fire shortly before midnight Monday. The fire had been burning for probably 15 or 20 minutes, according to Fire Lt. John Brown, who said that the fire had been set. The bridge remains passable, largely because of its heavy timber construction. (Photo by Dave Fitzgerald)

Apartment proposal studied by boards

At least two Wilmington boards have recently discussed conditions they would like included in a comprehensive permit should one be granted the developers of the Wilmington Aboretum Apartments.

The board of appeals has to make the final decision on whether to grant the permit to the Investors Management Group (IMG), developers of the mixed rental apartment complex off Ballardvale Street. The board has 60 days, or until November 8, to reach a decision. To help render a decision, board chairman Bruce MacDonald has asked various town boards to give input before the 60 day period lapses.

At their meeting Monday night, members of the board of health outlined three possible requirements they would place on the permit. One was to have the developer hook into the town sewer line or construct a subsurface disposal system rather than rely on an on-site sewerage treatment plant.

"I have a real problem with sewerage treatment plants; they stink," said chairman James Ficociello, adding that "our prime obligation is still to the people of Wilmington."

Other areas which need to be addressed, they said, is the proper storage of rubbish and adhering to the town's septic system regulations.

At their meeting Tuesday night, the Wilmington Planning Board gave its approval to a list of 15 conditions which they will pass on to the board of appeals.

One condition states that the maximum number of units should not exceed nine units per acre because a density three times greater than what is allowed under present PRD zoning is all that can be supported. The board also said the development will have to be connected to the public sewerage system because, with the kind of density proposed, an on-site disposal system "should not be an option."

Planners said IMG must maintain a 50 foot landscaped buffer around the property to insure adequate open space and refrain from locating any building or structure within that zone. They said all utilities must be placed underground at the time of "initial construction" and proposed buildings should not exceed three stories in height.

Other requirements deal with sidewalks, allotment of parking spaces, wheelchair access ramps, rubbish disposal, posting a bond for the total value of the work, and submitting plans to the Town Engineer.

No sewer planned yet for apartment proposal

"It is unfortunate that the applicant has not been in, to discuss the proposed water and sewer plans."

So observed Chairman George Allan, of the Wilmington Water and Sewer Commissioners last Thursday (October 2). The commissioners had just completed their study of the water and sewer plans for the proposed Wilmington Aboretum Apartments, in North Wilmington.

Only one set of plans for the proposal seems to exist, in Wilmington. The commissioners found them to be devoid of information for which they were searching.

The Wilmington Board of Appeals on September 10 allowed a 60 day continuance, on a comprehensive permit public hearing for the apartment proposal, in order to allow Wilmington town officials an opportunity to study the details. The Investors Management group (IMG) is seeking approval to construct 204 apartment units off Ballardvale Street. Twenty percent, or 40 units are planned to be set aside for families with low and moderate income.

A comprehensive permit may be granted by a Board of Appeals in communities which have less than 10 percent low to moderate income housing. The Massachusetts law allows developers to circumvent the normal board process. However, the Conservation Commission is not included in the process. There must be a separate hearing before that board.

The plans showed sewer and water mains being planned to use a right of way to Arlene Avenue for the purpose of connecting with Wilmington water mains and sewer mains. However, the mains were not shown as going all the way to Arlene Avenue. Some of the proposed apartment buildings were shown as being located about 20 feet from property lines of Arlene Avenue homes.

Fire flow requirements were first discussed by the commissioners. They noted that there is only a six inch water main in Ballardvale Street, while there is an eight inch water main in Arlene Avenue. They also noted that there was no proposal about the size of water mains in the streets proposed for the apartments. No gate valves were shown for the mains.

The plans, Allan observed, were lacking in sufficient details to allow comments on the applications of plans for the area.

No information was given about the demand for daily use of water, nor for the maximum possible demand. Wilmington, the commissioners observed, has experienced low pressure in some areas, during peak demands, and this was one of those areas.

The plans, Allan observed, were lacking in sufficient details to allow comments on the applications of plans for the area.

The sewer plans seemed to be even more insufficient to the commissioners. There were no details as to size of the sewer mains, no details as to slope, nor information about a proposed sewer pumping station. Who is to operate the proposed station? was one question asked.

The sewer was shown as planned to discharge to Arlene Avenue, where there is no sewer. There was no indication of what would happen then, as to the destination of the effluent.

The applicant, Allan observed, should be made aware that plans for service of sewer mains to Arlene Avenue have as yet to be made. Wilmington, he observed, has "long range" plans for the possible construction of a sewer main southerly along the Boston & Maine tracks, but that is a long time in the future. The new interceptor would have to be constructed from Salem Street to, probably, Woburn Street, and then to Route 38 near Avco, where it could connect with the Wilmington sewer.

No plans for such an interceptor have been made, or even discussed.

The Arlene Avenue area, Allan said, cannot be connected with the current sewer system. The existing interceptor in North Wilmington was not designed to service this part of the town. At the present time the town has no plans, and no money to construct an interceptor to this area.

Allan also observed that the plans, which were labeled "Utility Plans" had no designs shown for electric light service nor gas service.

The names of three attorneys for the IMG group were shown. Paul Holian, Benjamin Schore and Edward Warekios were named as trustees of Co Op Realty & Development Trust - a liquidating trust.

Horribles Parade October 31

The Wilmington Recreation Department's 18th annual Horribles parade will take place Friday evening, October 31.

Costumed creatures of all ages will gather by the police station at 6:30 and march to the high school tennis courts where costumes will be judged and goodies will be distributed. This is a fun, safe way for the youth of Wilmington to celebrate Halloween, so come out and join us.

Anyone interested in helping should contact the Recreation Department 8:30 to 2:30 at 658-4270.

For over a century, Perry's Corner was the name for that corner of Avco land where Woburn Street and Lowell Street meet in Wilmington. The Perry Blacksmith Shop stood on that corner for more than a century.

It wasn't new when it first arrived in Wilmington sometime about 1835. It had been the property of a blacksmith known as John S. Perry, who worked in Boston for Asa Sheldon. Asa had hired John to provide shoes for the oxen Asa was using in removing Pemberton Hill and in filling the Boston waterfront along the Charles River.

After the contract was completed Asa moved everything to Wilmington. The blacksmith shop was set up at the corner of Lowell Street and John S. Perry and his wife lived in what later became the home of Herbert C. Barrows, 100 yards southerly along Woburn Street.

One of the sons took over the business after the Civil War. John W. Perry ran the shop for over half a century, it is to be believed. After that there were other blacksmiths, and about the time that World War II was about to begin Life Magazine became interested.

It was an interesting place. Life had a good subject. Photographs were taken in preparation for the story. But the story was never printed. Probably the onset of World War II was the reason.

One outstanding photograph was probably totally unknown to the publishers of Life. It had been taken by Ed Nelson Eames about 1900. Photographers call the picture a "natural light" picture, taken without the use of flash or

That photograph of John W. Perry at his anvil, illuminated by "back light" is now the property of the Town Crier. If Life had known of it that magazine would perhaps have gone ahead with the story of Perry's Blacksmith's Shop, war or no war.

Wilmington blacksmith rode trolley to work

John W. Perry, the second of the Perry blacksmiths, built his home near Church Street, Wilmington before 1900. Possibly it was as early as 1880. One son, born to the family, was born in 1875.

Living on Church Street, he probably used a horse and buggy to go to and return from work in the blacksmith's shop at Perry's corner.

But about 1900, give or take a year or two, a streetcar line was installed on Church Street. It was then possible to go from Wilmington Square, via Church Street and Wildwood Street, to Perry's Corner, and to go to Reading and the railroad depot in that town.

The 7 a.m. trolley car was always loaded with passengers, all of them talking with each other and the motorman and/or conductor. It was to all accounts, a loaded car. All were going to the Reading depot.

One passenger was, every weekday, John W. Perry. He got off at Perry's Corner.

Then, at noon he would ride home for lunch, and return an hour later to resume his work. The days' work done he would ride home in the evening, generally alone, for the Boston workers would be using a later trolley.

Charlie Perry was not a blacksmith

Copyright © 1986
by Capt. Larz Nielson

Charles (Charlie) Perry was about 36 years old when he became the janitor of the brand new Wilmington High School, in 1914. He was a grandson of John S. Perry, the first blacksmith in the Perry Blacksmith Shop, and the son of Benjamin F. Perry.

In his early married life, Benjamin lived in the Allen House, at what is now 603 Woburn St., in Wilmington. It was there that Charlie was born. Later Benjamin moved to what is now the Balser home, 136 Middlesex Avenue.

Benjamin established a milk business, and in later years he was bringing milk from Wakefield every day, to bottle. That was the first job that Charlie had, helping his father.

Charlie married Emma Kellom, a Wilmington girl, in 1899, and sometime about 1912 built a home at the corner of Church and Adams Street, in Wilmington. In later years that home could be described as being "across the street from the high school."

That home was a natural for school teachers who might be seeking a place wherein to board. It was about half a mile from the Walker School, and even nearer to the High School, that which was recently the Center School. Three to five teachers would board at the Perry home, beginning about the second decade of the twentieth century.

When the new high school opened in 1914, Charlie became the janitor. He was a good janitor. He kept care of that school all by himself. The pupils of that day reacted to Charlie as they did 30 odd years later to Lester Smith, the janitor of the more recent high school. Both men did their jobs, both were quiet and subdued, and the pupils liked them.

In those days the janitor was charged with keeping the coal-fired furnace going. It was quite a job. Charlie also had a job as janitor for the Grange Hall, and he still ran the milk routes established by his father Benjamin. In other words he was a busy man.

And Emma had a boarding house for teachers. There was a nice piazza in front of the house, where the teachers could sit and enjoy the evening breezes, after the day's work was done.

One of those young ladies was named Gertrude Eames. Today she is Gertrude Allgrove of 281 Woburn Street. In three more years the lady will be passing the century mark.

In 1916 the writer became a first grader in the Walker School. Gertrude Eames was his first teacher. It was a case of love at first sight.

There were no hot lunch programs in those days. Those pupils who lived within walking distance of the school would go home for lunch. Others brought their lunches with them in a tin tobacco box or a brown bag. The writer's lunch was in a tin box, originally made for Mayo's Cut Plug (tobacco).

As soon as lunch was over the writer would run to the Charlie Perry home, to wait for his teacher to finish her lunch. While he waited he could watch Charlie Perry at the "milk machine."

LOWER TAXES NEXT YEAR?

Will you have a lower tax bill under the new tax law? Maybe not. First, because this is a tax reform bill, not a tax cut. And second, because the new, lowered rates everyone is looking forward to won't be phased in until well into 1987, even though the negatives -- the disallowed deductions and the restrictions on adjustments -- start in January, for the most part.

The administration claims the following will happen: most of those in the lowest income levels, under $10,000, will pay sharply lowered taxes or none at all; those between $10,000 and $20,000 will pay almost 20 percent less on 1987 income; taxes will be about 10 percent less for those earning up to $50,000; families with an annual income of $50,000 to $75,000 will pay almost the same in 1987; those who make more will see their tax bills go up. (There will be a slight savings in 1988.)

Of course, these claims have yet to be proven. Your own savings (or loss) will depend on how you handle adjustments and deductions, and how skillful your tax planning and preparation is.

How will you be affected? Talk it over with Big Boy Tigger has disappeared without a trace, right from under the noses of the children of Eileen Lemieux's second grade class at the Wildwood School. The overstuffed leopard was originally found in a trash barrel and made front page history in a recent edition of the Town Crier.

The discarded animal with the checkered history has been missing since recess Tuesday morning. In his place was a ransom note saying the leopard was being held hostage in exchange for a visit from the Wilmington Witch.

School officials and children are stymied. Who is the Wilmington Witch? Where can she be found?

The whole Wildwood School staff and student body requests that any Wilmington resident who knows the whereabouts of the Wilmington Witch get in touch with the school immediately. Or better yet, maybe the wandering witch would be kind enough to put in a personal appearance herself.

After less than two weeks in school, "Big Boy Tigger," the stuffed toy leopard has been taken, apparently by a good-natured cat-napper. This photo was taken last week.

Car chase ends in Concord*Tewksbury trio arrested on armed robbery charges

by Bill Conlon
An alleged armed robbery turned into a car chase early Wednesday morning, and ended with the arrest of three Tewksbury men.

The incident began around 1 a.m. at the Old Colony gas station on Route 133, in north Tewksbury near the Andover town line.

According to police, three men, one of them carrying a shotgun, allegedly held the attendant at gunpoint while $200 in cash and an undetermined amount of cigarettes were taken.

According to Tewksbury officer Leonard Bolton, the three then told the attendant to run away and allegedly fired a shot over his head before returning to their car, parked nearby.

The attendant, however, returned to the station and called police to give a description of the car, then flagged down a passing motorist and gave chase.

The suspects turned onto North Street, according to Bolton, then headed south on Main Street. Bolton said he was parked at Shawsheen and Main Streets and spotted the suspect vehicle as it cruised by. He said he pulled in behind the car, called in the license number and was told the plate was stolen, then signaled the vehicle stop the vehicle.

Bolton said the suspects then took off down Main Street, reaching speeds in excess of 90 mph. The shotgun, he said, was jettisoned near the Tewksbury-Wilmington line.

According to Bolton, the chase led all the way to the Route 128 interchange in Burlington, where he said he lost sight of the vehicle.

But radio is faster than any car and a Burlington police inspector listening in on the pursuit soon spotted the suspect vehicle headed southbound on Route 128. The chase then continued.

According to Bolton, the car chase continued until the suspects reached Route 2-2A in Concord, where they ditched the vehicle and attempted to escape into some woods. Bolton said the State Police brought in two dogs to join in the pursuit, and all three suspects were eventually rounded up.

At 5:45 a.m., Bolton booked Daniel D. Perry, 18, 398 Livingston St., Tewksbury, on a charge of armed robbery. Later that morning, Richard E. Travers, 17, 8 Memorial Dr., Tewksbury, was booked on the same charge.

At 7:45 a.m., Paul W. Travers, 21, of 187 Fiske St., Tewksbury, was booked on charges of armed robbery; illegal possession of a firearm; illegal possession of ammunition; assault with intent to murder; speeding (95 mph in a 35 mph zone); failure to stop; failure to keep to the right; attaching wrong plates; driving so as to endanger; and receiving stolen property (a license plate.)

Library plans flea market

The Friends of the Tewksbury Public Library will hold a flea market and bake sale Saturday, October 18 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on the Tewksbury Town Hall Common. The group is currently taking reservations from individuals and organizations who are interested in renting space at the flea market. The rental fee is $10, and reservations can be made by contacting Mrs. Sue Cullinan, at 851-4560.

Proceeds from the flea market will benefit Tewksbury's Patten Public Library, as do proceeds from all fund-raising events sponsored by the Friends of the Library throughout the year. Annually, the Friends donate family passes to the Museum of Science, the New England Aquarium, and the Museum of Fine Arts to the Library.

This fall, the Friends of the Library are celebrating the 10th anniversary of the organization's founding.

Frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

Barbara Anderson, the executive director of Citizens' for Limited Taxation (CLT), is once again on her way to easing the tax burden of Massachusetts residents. Her organization has placed on the November ballot Question 3 which, if passed by the voters, would implement a permanent cap on state taxes. CLT can be remembered for their successful lobbying effort for Prop. 2 1/2 in 1980.

The tax-cap referendum has long been a favorite for passage. Its strongest critics were predicting just a short while ago that the referendum would receive a significant majority of votes in the affirmative. The president of the High Tech Council, Howard Foley, has led a most impressive fundraising effort, with one local company, Compugraphic, contributing $4,000. And, a poll conducted weeks ago showed 70 percent of voters favoring Question 3.

Unfortunately for CLT, the situation concerning Question 3 -- the tax-cap referendum -- has been made much more complicated by the state Legislature. Though opposed to Question 3, the governor has supported the Legislature in repeal of the surtax (a creation of the first Dukakis administration) and a cap on state revenue growth which would be directly tied to the increase of salaries and wages. Consequently, Barbara Anderson has labeled this as a political attempt to divert the attention of the voters from support of Question 3, which she maintains is far superior to the state tax cap proposed by the Legislature.

Specifically, the legislative cap being supported by the governor has an override option written in, as well as a 'rainy day fund.' Question 3 is more strict and allows for none of the above, thus is a more conservative measure and saving greater tax dollars.

Causing even more complication has been the part of the CLT petition which calls for a repeal of the 11-year-old surtax over a two year period. Oddly enough, Dukakis and key members of the state Legislature backed immediate repeal of the surtax. However, this too has been labeled as political. Dukakis and the Legislature accepted surtax repeal only in light of the CLT ballot question, and subsequently jumped a step ahead of Barbara Anderson by implementing the repeal immediately. Therefore, passage of Question 3 potentially could reinstate 50 percent of the surtax for 1986.

Even if that were to be the case, and it is not definite that it would be, Question 3 has merit and deserves the support of the voters. It would, in the long run, be a far superior cap on state taxes. And the simple fact that Dukakis is against it and Barbara Anderson is for it might be a signal as to how the taxpayers should vote. Anderson did us all a great service in her fight for Prop. 2 1/2, which the governor said none of us would vote for. Let's surprise him again.

Local legislators and taxpayers should be opposed to one provision of an otherwise good piece of legislation recently introduced on Beacon Hill by State Senator Carol Amick (D-Bedford). Presently before the Senate Ways and Means Committee, a new property-transfer tax would be instituted in Massachusetts for the purpose of providing monies for the cleanup of innocent-owner waste sites in the state.

These are properties held by homeowners and businesses where chemical wastes have been discovered, though not through the actions of the present owners. Nevertheless, the laws hold these individuals fully liable for the cleanup. This has naturally caused undue hardship for many and a predictably growing concern amongst mortgage lenders.

Though the rate for the tax is proposed at a low figure, 15 cents per $1,000 for residential property and 55 cents per $1,000 for commercial, the concept is simply another tax on the residents of Massachusetts. And if enacted, it would be always possible to raise the rate.

Amick's bill would wisely remove the liability, and is certainly well intentioned. But, the Legislature should consider another method for the funding of the bill other than a tax on the transfer of property; such as monies from the state surplus. The average person is already deluged with fees that come with the sale of a home and cannot be expected to afford another.

With careful work and study, the Legislature should closely examine the merits of the Amick proposal, which would protect innocent people from having to fund the cleanup of waste products that they never dumped on their land. The Bedford state Senator's bill can be funded without an additional tax in the state, and would then result in an excellent piece of legislation.

25 years ago

The October 12, 1961 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

Bob Cowie of Ballardvale Street was elected president of Wilmington Little League; Anthony Toti of Brant Avenue was to serve as vice president; Harry Johnson would act as secretary and the treasurer's duties would be assigned to Bob Baker.

Josephine Carlson of Main Street was named president of the Little League Women's Auxiliary with Dot Fullerton to serve as vice president, Flora Kasabowski secretary and Lillian Miselis, treasurer.

Waltham Door and Window Co. held open house for people in the building industry in its $300,000 plant in North Wilmington.

Edsel Tocci of Watertown, developer of Alderwood Estates between Woburn and West Streets was granted a 45 day extension by the planning board before plans become final. Tocci planned homes of about $21,000 value on 66 lots if all were approved.

Nick DeFelice, Jr. was pictured atop a tank truck being washed out at H.R. Ritter on lower Woburn Street, the newest industry in town. It opened in late August.

Elias was offering Maple Leaf Sausages at 59 cents a pound; chuck roast at 59 cents a pound and oranges at 49 cents a dozen.

Pictures of that week's football game showed medals on the sweater of band majorette Barbara McLain with Joanne Baker close behind and Cheryl Silvers playing the glockenspiel. Performing with batons, were Sandra Baker and sisters Barbara and Beverly McLain.

Bob O'Leary with feet in the air takes care of a Bedford carrier while Dicky Allard, Capt. Eddie Woods, Billy Cotter and Danny Moeglin approach ready to assist. The final score - Wilmington 20-Bedford 0.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lowry of Cedarcrest Road were pictured with Indian artifacts they found in their back yard.

Herbert Higley of Roosevelt Road resigned as scoutmaster of Troop 56 effective Oct. 21. A veteran of 23 years in scouting, he would continue to serve on the troop committee.

Safety tips given for Fire Prevention Week

In 1922, a bill requiring the observation of Fire Prevention Week was signed into law by President Harding. This legislation came as the result of many large-loss fires in the U.S.

Fire Prevention Week is observed every October in the week which contains the ninth day. October 9, 1871 was the day of the Great Chicago Fire.

Historically, the record of fire safety in the country has been poor. However, many valuable lessons have been learned from our mistakes. For example, building codes have been established to limit types of construction that contribute to flame spread. Also changed was the number and type of exits per floor area, building sprinkler and fire suppression systems, state of the art smoke and fire alarm systems, up to date fire apparatus and highly skilled firefighters, to name a few.

Yet with all of these advances in technology the United States still experiences the highest life and property loss due to fire of all the industrialized nations. As if that's not bad enough, the Northeast experiences the largest dollar loss and most civilian and firefighter deaths due to fire in the country.

The main reason for these horrendous statistics is simple carelessness. We tend to overlook the obvious hazards that could be easily corrected.

With Fire Prevention Week upon us, the Wilmington Fire Department has put together this general reminder of safety tips to keep our families and homes safe from injury by fire.

- Place smoke detectors on each level of the home; test frequently.

- Install a house number, visible to firefighters and EMTs from the street.

- Have emergency telephone number stickers on the telephone.

- FD approved ABC extinguisher at least in the kitchen and basement. Read the directions.

- Practice fire drills and escape plans with the family.

- Remember to crawl low in smoke.

- If your clothes catch fire, stop drop and roll.

- Keep combustibles 36 inches away from wood stoves and heating units; have chimneys inspected and cleaned.

- Keep flammable liquids outside.

- Don't overload circuits, or run extension cords under the carpet.

- Keep all exits clear.

- Household hot water temperature at 120 degrees F or less; don't leave a child alone in the bathtub.

- Cool a burn with cool water.

- Keep appliances away from sinks and tubs.

- Store household cleaners and chemicals up high away from children.

- Oct. 25: Wilmington residents may dispose of hazardous waste at the Swain School hazardous waste pickup.

- For smokers, have large ash trays on hand, check couches and chairs after smokers and never smoke in bed.

- When cooking, don't wear loose fitting clothing and keep pot handles turned in.

- Keep flashlights with fresh batteries on hand. Never use candles. If the power lines are down, the chances are that the phone lines to report a fire are down too.

- To report a fire, dial 658-2300, tell the dispatcher:

1. Your name.

2. Address of the fire (or where the ambulance is needed).

3. The nature of the problem.

4. The telephone number that you are calling from.

5. Stay on the line until the dispatcher acknowledges the information.

Hopefully, some of these tips will be helpful in making Fire Prevention Week, as well as the upcoming holidays and New Year, much safer for all of us. Practice Fire Prevention every day, and remember - smoke detectors save lives.

letter to the editor

Dear Members of the Wilmington School Committee:

The recent news that verbal SAT scores in Wilmington rose an astronomical 30 plus points has both excited and overwhelmed me, but it really should not surprise me. The students at Wilmington High School worked hard for those scores--they deserve the recognition. Mr. Horan, in particular, supported the English Department objectives with a positive spirit and a realistic budget to support our objectives. He not only listened; he followed through. The above achievement may be the perfect case of, "You get what you pay for."

The real applause, however, must also be directed toward the English teachers who, three years ago, accepted the challenge that more could be done with a curriculum, and they devoted themselves toward that goal. They were positive in their approach--no looking past at back failures. They were receptive to new ideas and materials. And they were willing to modify one very small portion of the English curriculum to reality-- test-taking strategies. Early on, we all decided that our best cohorts in successfully forging ahead would be the guidance counselors. And as a dedicated, collective group, strong in numbers and direction, we felt that we could not lose. And we did not lose.

I trust the local newspapers are paying close attention to your great success because about 10 months ago they portrayed only the negative value of SAT scores in Merrimack Valley high schools (The Lowell Sun). Now they have a real news story, not only to gratify the Wilmington community, but to inspire other communities as well.

I applaud all of you associated with the Wilmington schools. You deserve the applause and much more. But in particular I salute the students, guidance counselors, and especially the English teachers at Wilmington High School who recognized the potential for growth, caught hold of it, and succeeded beyond everyone's expectations.

Very truly yours,
David J. Moriarty, Ed.D
Past Chairman, Department of English 7-12

Letter to the Editor

Dear Larz:

Last Sunday I was involved in an incident which I feel should be made public, and in writing about it, hopefully I may save a life.

I was preparing to go to work. As I looked out the door to check what the weather was like, I saw a heavy, thick fog that can make driving dangerous.

I drove to Dunkin' Donuts to get the coffee I usually start my work night off with and when I left I headed toward Tewksbury on Route 38 at 30-35 miles per hour. I work in Tewksbury. It was 10:20 p.m. and I didn't have to hurry because I don't start until 11.

At the stretch of straight-away on Route 38 (Main Street) where I normally speed up a little, I stuck to my 30-35 due to the fog.

The teenage boy wearing dark clothing was trying to cross the road. His girlfriend almost tore his shirt trying to hold him back because he continued to try to cross after she saw my headlights. I couldn't see them until I was almost on them. He can thank his girl, she gave him back the rest of his life.

I turned my car around to have a talk with and reprimand him. I pointed out that he almost got killed and should be more careful. All he could say was "I know," which made talking with him useless. He was lethargic and couldn't speak clearly. The girl stood back as if afraid of what might happen. He wasn't drunk, but I wonder what he was under the influence of.

Was it worth it young man? Were your problems so overwhelming that you took a chance with your life - and mine?

Look around and see how many drunk drivers are on the road. Had I been drunk, or less alert, you and your girl might both be dead.

I don't know whether you realize how close you came to being killed, but your girl and I do. Imagine, if you will, her living the rest of her life having seen you run down by my car.

What could I have said to your parents had I run you down because "you were high." Would I have been able to explain the remorse experienced had I killed you?

I can imagine the things people would say as you were laid out in your coffin.

Next time you smoke a joint, pop a pill, snort or whatever you were doing, I want you to remember how close you came to death at 10:20 p.m. on Sunday, September 21.

Is it worth it?

Dennis P. Hewitt

Dear Larz:

Speaking as one who has had a need, both on a personal and a professional basis, for contact with the Town Engineering Department over the past 20 years, I would appreciate the opportunity to share some observations, especially in light of recent criticism directed at this department.

Wilmington is a hotbed of both residential and commercial development. The Town Engineering Department, in addition to providing engineering support for municipal projects, is the monitoring device for all regulated development in town. These duties alone demand a full time professional staff for field and office engineering tasks, overseen by the department head. However, the need for full time office clerical support is obvious.

As one doing business in the town of Wilmington I appreciate the services of the department. As a taxpayer, I expect these services and the availability of a department representative on a regular basis. This is impossible with an understaffed department. Let's give the Town Engineer the tools and man power necessary to do his job and then be critical if it's not being done.

Joe Casey

The Humble Farmer

They did it for the children

Years ago one read horror stories of men and women who lived together in misery. Perhaps he never changed his socks or slept with a mouth full of Copenhagen. Perhaps she watched the soaps all day or continually talked about the successful men she could have married.

Whatever the reason, they disliked each other intensely and were deliciously miserable. Sometimes their friends would know it. More often, though, they kept their troubles to themselves.

Divorce was out of the question. They had to stay together and suffer "for the children." Children coming from a broken home would be somewhat different. Their friends would certainly tease them at school. No, man and wife stayed and suffered under one roof, alone together, for the children.

Then someone, probably a Californian who was chafing to escape from such a situation, reasoned that the happiness of adults should come first. Divorce became popular. Children, with two complete sets of parents, were classified as his, hers, ours and theirs.

Ann Landers' mail bag bulged as millions of bewildered Americans sought answers to unique or crushing Christmas present problems and who visits where on holidays. To make matters even more difficult, some men married sultry nieces of their ex's grandmother with the condo in Key West. Not to be outdone, grim women in their 40's doubled the paper boy's cookie ration, and silently waited.

Before long, a new class of lonely and estranged children emerged. On the condition that I never breathe a word of it to anyone, my friend Will Powers, father of two, told me about his problems.

"My kids are messed up," he confided. "The other kids laugh at them at school because they're different."

"Professional counselling hasn't helped them?" I asked.

"They don't get professional counselling -- that's why they're different. Mary and I love each other very much, and we love our children, too. Coming from such a tightly knit loving family group is too much for our kids. It's different from anything they've ever seen when they visit friends or watch TV. It's way beyond their range of experience and they simply can't cope with it."

"It's tough on kids when they find they're different from the others," I said.

Will sighed and said, "Mary and I have talked it over. We've decided to get a divorce for the children."

"Coming from a broken home, they'd fit right in most anywhere," I agreed. "But kids are pretty sharp. Won't they see that it's just an act?"

"No, we're going to do it right. I'm going to have an affair with Mary's best friend and she's going to move in with my father's brother."

"Why didn't she go home to her mother?"

"She tried. But when she called, her mother said that she was too late. Last week her brother got divorced and moved in."

"I suppose it's worth getting a divorce if the kids' grades improve at school," I said.

Will said, "Of course we'll only keep up the pretense of disliking each other until the kids are older. When we think they can handle it, we plan to tell them we're in love and getting married."

"Mary's a great cook. You'll miss her."

My friend looked over his shoulder. Then he whispered, "Actually, we'll be seeing quite a bit of one another on the sly - at least once or twice a week in motels. But the children will never know. I wouldn't deprive them of a normal childhood for the world."

Just for a laugh

Furry faces are fun!

by Bill Conlon

What do Abraham Lincoln, ZZ Top and Santa Claus have in common?

Answer: Beards. And for those who have never grown a hair mask, now is the prime time. Winter is bearing down on us, and there's nothing like a face blanket to keep the chill off your cheeks.

Besides, even the weakest of chins can be made to disappear under a growth of facial fluff.

The art of growing a healthy "chin cactus" is simplicity itself. Just leave it alone and presto! You'll have one in about a month.

(Well, at least half of the human race will. Most women and some few men have trouble growing beards. Unfortunate but true.)

The month it takes for a beard to grow in will be the longest one you'll ever spend. Nothing itches like a new beard, from both inside and out, or looks worse. During the month between deciding to grow one and actually calling it a beard, you'll just have to accept looking like Yassir Arafat.

But if you can keep from flushing your stubble down the bathroom sink during the first month, the rest of the winter will be sheer joy.

Unless you happen to enjoy eating, that is. Neanderthals didn't have corn on the cob or barbecued chicken, so they never worried about it. You should. Seasoned fur-balls know that a comb is a required piece of every table setting.

A few swipes of the comb after dinner may even save you from intense social criticism. Nothing will slam-dunk your chances in a singles bar like a piece of broccoli hanging from your chin.

Of course, you may use your brushpile to save a snack for later, but this should be done only by the truly daring or by street winos. And when it begins to smell, check your snack-pocket for rancidity.

Another important social tip for the newly furred is to make a few comb passes in the morning, before going to work. One of my biggest gripes in college came in finding a big puff of green blanket lint under my chin at the end of the day. How many short people looked at that lint-ball and laughed behind their hands? Hmmm.

Tobacco chewing should be done only on hunting trips or polar explorations. Don't do it near your wife, your friends, or in any civilized country. Bee keeping is also ill advised.

There are tactical considerations to beards as well. Alexander the Great forbade his troops from growing beards because it gave the enemy another handle to grab. You'll learn that all children are Persians when it comes to beards, especially when they latch on and lift their feet clear of the floor.

If your beard should catch fire, heaven forbid, quick action is a must. An occasional burn hole from a cigarette or butane lighter should be expected, but open flames mean something is wrong. Lit candles should be avoided, and don't ever use them to decorate your beard for Christmas.

As for neckties, you need never learn a proper knot if you have a sincere chin scarf. It's a lot like someone obese wearing a fancy belt buckle. Who'll ever see it?

Without a beard, however, winter can be brutal. Chins are highly susceptible to frostbite, and there's nothing like a face-blanket to keep out the chill.

But the cold can be a danger to your beard, oddly enough. If you notice an ice build-up on your face, do not break it off. The hair will snap off with the ice, leaving little bare spots that look like the Mange.

Beards have a long and honorable history and the tradition should be kept alive in our time. Only by proper wear and care of our chin cactus will the tradition live on.

Think about it! How would Abe Lincoln look with a drip of pizza sauce running down his beard?

Worse still, think of the trauma if Santa showed up clean-shaven! Who'd recognize him? Christmas just wouldn't be the same!

The HUB Account® tips the scales in your favor...

An innovative investment system of checks and balances.

✓ High Interest Rates and Unlimited Checking

A Hub Account offers you the complete flexibility and ease of four accounts in one. If your balance increases, you do not have to open another account to earn the maximum interest. For example, $0-$1,000 continues to earn the NOW Account rate, while $1,001-$7,500 begins to earn the Super NOW rate. If your balance reaches $15,001, four interest rates are operating to your high interest advantage.

✓ Four Interest Rates at Work in your One Hub Account

COMFED'S HUB ACCOUNT
DEPOSIT LEVELS	INTEREST RATES*
For your first $0 to $1,000	NOW Account Rate
For your next $1,001 to $7,500	SuperNOW Account Rate
For your next $7,501 to $15,000	Money Market Rate
For your next $15,001 to $100,000	18-Month CD Rate

* Rates based on the COMFED index. COMFED reserves the right to alter the interest rate and deposit levels at any time. Notification of rate levels appears on your monthly statements.

✓ Unlimited Checking

What's more, Hub allows you to write as many checks as you want—whenever you want. An unlimited checking account means privilege without restriction.

✓ Instant Liquidity/No Withdrawal Penalties

What many investors like best about a Hub Account is its instant liquidity. You can withdraw funds at any time without penalty. No more nagging fears that you might need cash but can't get it without forfeiting interest.

✓ Plus... Convenience Through Check Safe-keeping

ComFed keeps your checks safe and in order. Copies for tax or other purposes are available on request.

✓ 100% Federally Insured (FSLIC) Up to $100,000.

Selectmen take firm stand on drugs, alcohol

by Arlene Surprenant
In response to a letter from selectmen chairman Rocco DePasquale, members of the Wilmington Board of Health took a firm stand against drugs and alcohol at their meeting Monday night.

DePasquale sent the board an invitation to join other board members and residents at the first meeting of the Selectmen's Advisory Committee on Drug and Alcohol Abuse on October 20. The committee is being formed to help combat the dangers of drugs and alcohol in Wilmington.

Though crack, cocaine, and heroin are the most publicized drugs, said board chairman Dr. James Ficociello, he added that alcohol and tobacco are "far more deadly to our society."

"If we're going to have a drug program in Wilmington, we should address all three," he said. He went on to suggest the board make informational brochures available to the public because "it's amazing how ill-informed we are about alcoholism."

Health Director Greg Erickson said he was "vehemently" opposed to serving or selling alcohol to anyone underage and recommended "harsh measures" be taken against any establishment which does so.

We got sumthin' those other guys don't!

Lowell park service announces fall tours

Lowell National Historical Park and Lowell Heritage State Park have announced the new fall tour schedule from October 14 through December 19, 1986. All tours are free and last approximately 90 minutes. Reservations may be made by phone (617) 459-1000, or in person at the National and State Parks Visitor Center located at 246 Market St. (corner of Market and Dutton Streets in downtown Lowell). Special arrangements may be made in advance for school groups or organizations requesting alternative tour themes or times. All tours begin at the National and State Parks Visitor Center in the Market Mills Complex.

The Visitor Center, open daily from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., houses exhibits on labor, capital, power, machines, and the industrial city. "Lowell: The Industrial Revelation," an award-winning multi-image slide show, is presented twice each hour.

The Lowell Heritage State Park Waterpower Exhibit housed in the restored Mack Building, 25 Shattuck St., is open daily from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The Waterpower Exhibit is an educational and entertaining exploration of the Lowell Canal System and the use of water in Lowell. Audio-visuals, working models, and life-sized talking sculptures demonstrate how a transportation lock works; how falling water was used to provide power; and how breast wheels, turbines, and mill power transmission equipment work.

The fall tour schedule Monday through Friday is:

Lowell History: 9 a.m. Explore the history of the city which was once the greatest textile center in America. The story of Lowell's workforce, growth of an industrial city, its decline and rebirth are all part of this tour.

The Mill Experience: 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Lowell was once this country's pre-eminent textile manufacturing city, and many of its original mill complexes remain today. On this walking tour, visitors will explore the Boott Mills to learn about cotton textile production and the living and working conditions of the factory operatives. The tour will also take a look at the ongoing restoration and adaptive reuse of the mill buildings.

Tunes and Tales: 10:30 a.m., Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday. This absorbing, live performance of mill tunes, immigrant melodies, and labor songs is presented in the Visitor Center auditorium by Park Music Specialist Alexander Demas. Vocals are self-accompanied on an array of folk instruments including banjo, fiddle, mandolin, and Appalachian dulcimer.

Mill Girls and Immigrants: 11 a.m. The story of Lowell's factory operatives from the famous "mill girls" of early Lowell to later generations of immigrant workers. How were their experiences the same? How were they different? Come and see where they lived and worked.

A Walk with Waterpower: 1 p.m. Walk to nearby canals and gatehouses and learn how the water from the Merrimack River moved the machinery of Lowell. The weekend tour schedule is:

Saturday: Mill Experience, 11 a.m. and 2 p.m.; Mill Girls and Immigrants, 12 p.m.; A Walk with Waterpower, 1 p.m.; Lowell History, 3 p.m.

Sunday: Mill Experience, 11 a.m. and 3 p.m.; A Walk with Waterpower, 1 p.m.; Mill Girls and Immigrants, 2 p.m.

All tours are free and reservations are required. Lowell National and State Parks may be reached by taking the Lowell Connector from Interstate 495 or Route 3. Follow the brown and white signs for Lowell National and State Parks to the free visitor parking area behind Market Mills. For more information contact Lowell National Historical Park, 169 Merrimack St., 01852, (617) 459-1000.

Tewksbury dominates giant pumpkin contest

by Bill Conlon

A recent giant-pumpkin-growing contest held at Mahoney's Too on Main Street proved that Tewksbury gardeners know their melons.

Four of the top five awards went to Tewksbury residents.

The weighing-in ceremony for the giant squash competition was held October 4 at Mahoney's Too, with free cider, cookies and mums for the contestants.

Taking first place in the contest was Dan Morris of Tewksbury with a 102-pound watermelon. Dan won a $100 gift certificate from Mahoney's Too for his efforts.

Second place went to Fran Bowers, also of Tewksbury, for a squash weighing in at 101 pounds. Her prize was a $75 certificate at the garden shop and tree nursery.

Third place went to Beth Torre of Lowell for a 93-pound pumpkin, the only non-Tewksbury grower to place in the contest. Beth took home a $50 certificate for her future jack-o-lantern.

Fourth and final place went to Mark Roper of Tewksbury for a 74-pound squash, along with a $25 certificate.

According to Peter Bruyn at Mahoney's Too, this is the first year the contest has been held at the Tewksbury store. He said that Mahoney's in Winchester, the greenery's main branch, has held giant pumpkin contests for a few years, and that he was pleasantly surprised by the Tewksbury turnout.

For those thinking of growing monster pumpkins for next year's contest, Bruyn noted that all but Mark Roper's pumpkin were of the "Atlantic Giant" hybrid. Roper's fruit, he said, was one of the "Big Max" strain of pumpkin. Bruyn said Mahoney's Too had sold pumpkin seedlings in the spring, in anticipation of the contest, and that the starter seeds were provided by pumpkin champ Hugo Wiberg of Wilmington.

Bruyn said there would certainly be more giant pumpkin contests in coming years.

Tewksbury School News

A dozen families of the Heathbrook School P.A.C. gathered at the school the past two Saturdays to freshen up the school grounds after the summer vacation.

Weeds three feet high hid the bicycle racks; litter of bottles, cans and paper covered the playground and parking lot. The brush was in need of trimming and the outside classroom doors and playground equipment was in need of repainting.

Under the chairmanship of Richard Palmer all of the planned agenda was covered, followed by a noon time lunch of hot dogs, chips and cold drinks. In order to complete the painting projects a few families returned the second Saturday to finish the job.

P.A.C. believes that volunteer help by the parents of the students is one way that our public schools can do a better job.

Nearly 40 people making up the families of the Cronans, Archiprete, Davros, Mader, Mahoney, Myers, Nelson, Palmer, Schleicher, Wiley, Ferro, Witham and the school principal Mr. Antonio Terenzi have improved the appearance of the school and its playground.

The IGE (Individually Guided Education), the town-wide program opted by parents if they wish, has been comfortably housed in the Junior High School for several years now. During this time, despite overall declining enrollment, this program has grown in numbers in its new home.

Currently the program is housed in one wing of the Junior High School, served by seven teachers and two non-certified aides. Students are transported on regular Junior High School buses since recent budgetary restraints have eliminated the special buses.

There are 83 sixth grade students and 72 fifth grade students enrolled in the program. This number comes from various fourth grade schools in this order: Heathbrook, Trahan, North Street and Dewing schools. Geographically, the entire town is well represented.

The curriculum and treatment of most subjects is very similar to that found in the town's other elementary schools. Math is vastly different both in content and approach. The curriculum materials used are called IMS and consist of curriculum packages from which students can proceed at their own comfortable pace. Pre-testing and post-testing indicates mastery of a topic and the need for some special assistance. Language arts, to a degree, is also taught this way with packages which the staff did, at one time, construct. It is this added testing that creates the need for aides and parent volunteers to assist with correcting.

Bus safety drill

Wilmington Board of Health

New member welcomed with busy schedule

The Wilmington Board of Health welcomed new member Milton E. Calder, who comes with environmental experience in the hazardous waste and safety fields, to their meeting Monday night and discussed the handling of several complaints and court cases.

Members were told that several complaints have been filed against Canelas Disposal for making noise late at night in hauling trash.

Health Director Greg Erickson said Canelas assured him in a recent phone conversation it wouldn't happen again but "it's still happening." Erickson said he was sending a letter to Canelas explaining the board could revoke his license to haul through town.

Chairman James Ficociello told Erickson to invite Canelas to their next meeting to show the board backs any action taken by Erickson.

Members next went over two pending court cases. One case was a criminal complaint filed against Bernard Eaton of Lake Street. It came as a result of neighbors' ongoing complaints about the unsanitary conditions of Eaton's property.

"This is not a rational situation," said Ficociello, as he urged Erickson to follow through on an option to clean up the premises and bill the owner or put a lien against his home.

Francis Brennick of Chestnut Street was cited for a number of violations relating to plumbing, electrical system, doors which wouldn't lock, and failed septic system. The complaints were filed by Brennick's tenant.

To date, said Erickson, Brennick has shown "good faith" and addressed most of the violations with the exception of the failed septic system. He now has 30 days to fix it, and once that's done, the board expects to drop the charges, said Erickson.

Wilmington school news

by Arlene Surprenant
Wilmington High School
 Over 350 students enjoyed last Friday's Homecoming Dance. During the evening, Denise MacMullin and Eric Braciska were chosen Homecoming Queen and King, respectively, by a vote of their peers.

Cheers and high spirits will be the order of the day when the WHS student body converges on the football field this Friday during seventh and eighth periods. Students will take part in a school Pep Rally designed to show support for coaches and players in all fall sports. Helping to stir up enthusiasm will be the high school band and cheerleading squads.

Approximately 150 students have signed up to participate in the state's Junior Achievement program, according to Assistant Principal Jack Lynch. The program is open to sophomores and juniors.

The program gives youngsters experience in forming their own company, selling stock, and developing and merchandising a product.

Mr. Lynch is coordinating the program with advisors from the three company sponsors: Avco, Compugraphic, and G.E.

Dogs in pound

The Wilmington dog officer is presently holding the following dogs in the town dog pound:

Male Irish Setter mix, found Sept. 10 at Analog Devices, Woburn St.

Male German Shepherd, black & tan, brown leather collar, picked up Sept. 28 on Faulkner Ave.

The dog officer can be reached by calling the police station business line at 658-5071 or 5072.

For adoption information ONLY, call 658-2608. For adoption of cats or kittens, call 944-0673.

Tewksbury golden age club

Get well wishes are extended to all our members who are hospitalized and to those of you who are confined to your homes. We hope you are all feeling better.

A happy birthday is wished to the following members: Mary Fraser, Vesta Darby, Vernon Darby, Rita Brousseau, Beatrice Leonard, Gladys Bancroft, Catherine Curran, Ida Decker, Ed McGlone and Helen Reardon of Bemis Circle.

A happy anniversary is wished to Raymond and Margaret LaFortune who will be celebrating their 50th year of marriage this week.

Our monthly Golden Age Club meeting will be held next Tuesday, October 14 at 1:30 p.m. at the Senior Center. Bingo will follow.

The officers' meeting for this Friday has been cancelled.

The GAC will hold a "Cruise Night" next Wednesday night at the Tewksbury Senior Center, 175 Chandler Street.

North Intermediate
 The school's first PAC meeting will be held Tuesday, October 14 from 7 to 9 p.m. All interested parents are urged to come out and lend their support.

New principal Mary Driscoll was pleased with both the turnout and comments of parents at the school's Open House October 2. She was especially impressed with student behavior that night.

Parents are reminded that interims will be sent home this Friday and are due back, with parent's signatures, October 15.

Woburn Street School
 Fall wouldn't be complete without the annual Pumpkin Fair at the Woburn Street School.

This year, the public may enjoy the fun on Saturday, October 25 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. There will be raffles, refreshments, face painting, and pumpkins galore. Circle your calendars now and take along family and friends for a great day.

West Intermediate
 First term interims will be distributed Friday, October 10 to those students having difficulty in a particular subject. The forms must be signed and returned to the school no later than October 15. Parents are urged to call the school to make appointments with teachers concerning student progress.

Wildwood School
 The Wildwood School PAC held its first meeting of the year last Thursday night. Room mothers, who will be the communications link between teachers, parents, and the PAC, volunteered for every class. Plans for School Spirit Day were discussed, with parents suggesting several activities, such as classroom door decorating, a schoolyard clean-up, and planting of trees or flowers to compliment the theme of the day. Other suggestions or comments are always welcome and may be dropped off in the PAC mailbox at the school.

Many businesses in Wilmington have made donations to the Wildwood raffle. Any parents of Wildwood students who have goods or services to offer are encouraged to make a donation to the raffle. Tickets will go on sale on Election Day at the school. The raffle will be held at the school Christmas Concert, December 16.

According to Principal Robert Barrett, minimum competency testing for third and sixth graders will begin this month and last one week.

In observation of Fire Prevention Week, Assistant Fire Chief, Dan Stewart, appeared at Wildwood on October 6 for an assembly on good fire safety habits and prevention.

Shawsheen Tech
 Did you know that because Wilmington is a member community, residents may take advantage of several offerings at the Billerica school, all at minimal cost?

Residents wishing to get a haircut or wash and set may do so at the school's beauty parlor from two dollars on up. Baked goods such as breads, pastries, donuts, cakes and pies, many at two-for-one special prices, may be purchased at the Tech Bake Shop in the rear of the school. Frozen homemade foods, such as quiche, various soups, chow mein, ziti and meatballs, and seafoods, may be purchased in the diningroom at prices ranging upward of one dollar.

For a change of pace, why not make a reservation to enjoy lunch in the relaxed atmosphere of the Tech dining room? Starting at $2.50, residents may order complete meals from soup to dessert. All meals are prepared by culinary students and are served with a special touch. Reservations may be made the same day for one of two seatings at 11:15 a.m. and 12:15 p.m.

For further information about any of the above, please call the main office at 667-2111.

Editors Note: This is your column. If you would like to publicize an upcoming event, recognize an outstanding student or teacher, or notify the public of any school-related news, now is your chance. Contact the Town Crier office or call Arlene Surprenant at 658-5696 by Monday evenings.

CPA poll shows frustration with taxes

Nearly 80 percent of Massachusetts CPAs responding to a poll said their clients are frustrated by constant changes in the tax laws, and two-thirds believe uncertainty about tax legislation hurts business more than the latest reform bill would.

These findings were disclosed by the Massachusetts Society of Certified Public Accountants membership in the CPA Poll. Results of the responses of 600 members were revealed in Boston.

The CPAs expect strong support for tax reform (61.3%) and agree that their company/largest client will support the latest bill (52.6%).

Barely half (51.9%) agree that the bill will make the tax system more equitable (33.2% disagree). Nearly half (49.7%) of the sample disagree that the bill will make the tax system simpler.

"The tax law is going to be much more complex due to the substantive changes," stated William Philbrick, chairman of the Society's Federal Taxation Committee. "In attempting to level the playing field, Congress has made dramatic changes in the income tax burden of individuals and businesses. This shift, while attempting to be equitable and fair, may cause significant disparities in certain segments of the economy."

The following four provisions of the tax bill are seen by the CPAs as having a positive effect on businesses and individuals.

*Reducing the number of tax brackets to two (78.6%)

*Reducing the top corporate rate to 34% (71.6%)

*Increasing the personal exemption (66.7%)

*Increasing the standard deduction (54.4%)

The elimination of individual deductions for sales tax payments brought a dividend response, with 50.4% seeing it as negative and 44.9% seeing it as neutral. Only 4.8% saw it as positive.

Realtor completes course

Jane Forest of Realty World Forest-Conant, Wilmington has successfully completed Course II of the 1986 Summer Realtors Institute of Massachusetts held recently at the Best Western East, in Waltham, according to Massachusetts Association of Realtors President, Arthur M. Zweil, CCIM, of Beverly.

The Association sponsors Institutes throughout the year for Realtors and Realtor-Associates as part of its continuing education program. Upon completion of three 34 hour courses, Institute participants receive the nationally-recognized designation GRI (Graduate, Realtors Institute).

Of over 82,000 GRI's nationwide, there are over 2,500 in Massachusetts. The Institute includes such subjects as residential construction and design, listings, pricing property, marketing, law, finance, ethics, management, advertising, calculator, and governmental affairs. Some 300 persons attended the Institute.

Jane is associated with Realty World Forest-Conant at Colonial Park Mall, 35 Lowell St., Wilmington.

Cassidy named VP

Donald Cassidy

Donald Cassidy of Wilmington has joined the West Newton Savings Bank, as vice president-chief financial officer, announced bank chairman Robert P. Lurvey.

Cassidy, a certified public accountant, has 12 years experience in the banking industry, primarily in financial management and strategic planning. His expertise also includes corporate management, tax planning, joint ventures, real estate acquisitions and loan review. He was most recently associated with First Bank, Chelmsford, and with State Street Bank and Trust, Boston.

A graduate of Fordham University, Cassidy holds a BS in accounting and has completed numerous educational programs in accounting, auditing, taxation, SEC, EDP, public speaking and real estate.

Treasurer and director of Lowell House, Inc., Cassidy also serves as treasurer and founding committee member of the Middlesex Homeless Shelter. Cassidy and his wife, Eileen have one child, Christopher.

Wilmington executive receives awards

Carol Vigliotti of Wilmington, a representative of Oriflame International, recently returned from the company's second national conference in St. Louis, Missouri. At the conference she received the following special awards: International High Honors, Circle of Excellence-Sales, Circle of Excellence-Sponsoring, National Sales Leader, "Classy Beauty Advisor" and "Cash for Conference."

Marketing a fine line of imported skin care, body care and cosmetic products, Oriflame International started in Sweden in 1967, and now has sales operations in 24 countries. It is the largest cosmetic company in all of Scandinavia, and the largest skin care company in Europe marketing through private, in-home classes. Oriflame launched in the United States in 1982. Growth this year continues to meet expectations and with dynamic new programs in place, it is anticipated that sales will double in the next six months as reported by President Peter Nawrocki.

The National Conference was held to provide professional sales and business building expertise to the independent business women attending. Top achievers were recognized for their accomplishments and the first Gold Mercedes bonuses were awarded.

The chairman of the board, Jonas Jochnick, from Brussels, Belgium, was present to address the organization. Oriflame International's Director of Marketing from Chessington, England, launched a new fall product and gift line.

DRC announces $27M U.S. Air Force contract

Dynamics Research Corporation has announced the receipt of a three-year contract with the Headquarters Electronic Systems Division (ESD), U.S. Air Force Systems Command for approximately $27M. The company will continue providing technical and engineering management support (TEMS) for ESD. In the previous contract, efforts for ESD have included such programs as the Over-the-Horizon Backscatter Radar, Peace Shield, MILSTAR, The World Wide Military Command and Control System, and surveillance programs such as Joint STARS and AWACS airborne warning and control system.

John S. Anderegg, Jr., president of Dynamics Research Corporation said, "We're proud to have been selected to continue our work with the more than forty command, control communication and intelligence (C3I) program offices. We look forward to our continued association with ESD."

Dynamics Research Corporation provides a wide range of specialized technical services to the Department of Defense, and manufactures components and systems for industrial measurement and control.

"Good People" seminar

A one-day seminar on Finding and Keeping Good People will take place Friday, Oct. 17 at Merrimack College.

The seminar is designed to enable recruiters to make more informed choices about the people they hire, and to enhance the chances of job-seekers to find work environments that fit their skills and unique personalities. Interpersonal communications, matching people to the right job in a system, and how people present themselves in an interview and interpret what happens are among the topics to be discussed.

Norma Jean Langford, president of Human Communications, a communications consulting firm, will serve as instructor for the seminar. Ms. Langford, a one-time journalist, has taught at the University of Massachusetts, Fitchburg State College and the University of Southern Maine. This seminar developed from her experience as an interviewer and teacher, and from research into the ways people create and maintain organizations through talk.

The seminar will begin at 9 a.m. and continue until 4 p.m. A $75 registration fee is requested to cover the costs of materials, lunch, etc.

Further information on this and other non-credit seminars and courses is available from the office of Special Programs, Merrimack College, North Andover, MA 01845. (617) 683-7111, ext. 324.

Shriners' rodeo

The thrill and excitement of professional rodeo competition returns to Shriners Auditorium in Wilmington Thursday, October 16 through Sunday October 19, where hundreds of cowboys and cowgirls from all over the United States and Canada will compete in all the traditional and hair-raising rodeo contest of bull riding, bareback and saddle bronc riding, steer wrestling, calf roping and barrel racing.

Featured attractions will include Thurston Hamrick, one of the most widely known and respected bullfighters and rodeo clowns in the country. Thurston, who has delighted rodeo crowds with his antics and daring since 1965, is also a contestant of championship calibre. Also appearing will be Jan Karson-Looney and her trained, full-bred Brahma bull "Tohope." Jan, who rides Tohope just as she would ride a horse, says "Tohope" is just a ham who loves applause.

Shriners Auditorium is easily reached from exit 39 off Route 93 in Wilmington. Performances are 7:30 p.m. Thursdays through Sunday, matinees at 1:30 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday, with a special school show Friday at 10 a.m. Tickets are available at the gate, at the Auditorium box office daily from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m., by telephone with Mastercard or Visa, or by mail. For additional information contact Shriners Rodeo, 99 Fordham Road, Wilmington, MA 01887, or call 657-4203.

Assertiveness training workshop

To help people improve their communication skills and better deal with others during difficult times, the Regional Health Center in Wilmington's Community Health Education Department will conduct an assertiveness training course on Mondays, October 20-November 10 from 7 to 9:30 p.m.

Assertiveness is an ability to express one's feelings in an open, honest, and positive manner when appropriate; whether those feelings are negative or positive. An assertive person is able to express anger and resentment without feelings of hostility or guilt.

Both passive and aggressive personality styles can be fit from assertiveness training. Learning to express yourself more positively and learning to listen more effectively will help you respond to others who are angry or upset. Improving your communication skills will help to improve relationships, increase confidence, reduce stress and help you get your needs met!

This workshop will be limited to 15 participants in order to provide ample time for practice. Pre-registration is required by calling 657-3910, extension 567.

If you have something that you would like to add to Coming Events, contact Gaye Smith, Coming Events Coordinator, at 658-2346, or mail information to the Town Crier, Attn. Gaye Smith, P.O. Box 460 Wilmington, MA 01887

Crafts fair

The Silver Lake Spotlighters community theatre will sponsor a craft show and sale on Saturday, October 18, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Chapel at Tewksbury State Hospital, Tewksbury, Mass.

Featured will be a variety of hand-crafted items including: raffia scarecrows, soft-sculpture animals and dolls, teddy bears, silk flowers and wreaths, bread dough sculptures, 3-D decoupage, handwoven rugs and placemats, Christmas ornaments, wooden animals, wall plaques, and Icelandic sweaters as well as quilted and articles. There will be a raffle and refreshments will be available. Admission is 50¢. For further information, contact Madeline Anderson 664-4619. Craftspeople who wish to display their wares should also contact Ms. Anderson as a few tables are still available.

Museum of American Textile History

"New England 19th-Century Textile Mill as Art" Will be discussed by artist Marian Cannon Schlessinger at 7:30 p.m. Monday, October 20, at the Museum of American Textile History, located at, 800 Massachusetts Ave., North Andover.

Schesinger's watercolors and drawings of these mills are featured in the museum's current exhibit, "Schlessinger/Millwork: The Mill as Art." Her lecture will include a slide show of the mills and a walk through the exhibit. She will describe how she got involved in the project of painting the mills more than 15 years ago. She also will discuss the architecture of the mills and the significance of the textile industry to the economic life of New England.

Schesinger is both a landscape painter and portrait painter, as well as the author and illustrator of "Snatched From Oblivion," a Cambridge memoir, and several children's books. Admission fee for the lecture is $2. For more information, please call the museum at 686-0191.

"Communicating with your physician" lecture

If you wish to better interact with your physician to get your questions and concerns addressed, the Community Health Education Department at the Regional Health Center in Wilmington has a program for you.

"Communicating with your Physician," offered as part of an on-going Feeling Fine After Fifty series, has been designed to meet the needs of older adults who would like to develop a more satisfactory doctor-patient relationship. The program will be conducted by Suetta M.B. Tenney, M.D., internist. Dr. Tenney will discuss useful communication strategies as well as expectations one should have for an effective doctor-patient relationship. The program will be conducted in an informal group environment, and refreshments will be served.

Please contact the Community Health Education Department at 657-3910, ext. 567 for registration information.

'Surviving your child's adolescence' lectures at St. William's Church

"Surviving your Child's Adolescence" will be the theme of a free three-part lecture series to be presented at St. William's Church later this month. Sponsored by Meadowbrook Associates and St. William's Church in Tewksbury, the series will focus on helping parents to better understand adolescence and to develop effective methods for improving parent-teen relationships.

Monday, October 20: "Who is an Adolescent?" will focus on understanding the growth and development of adolescents; setting realistic limits while developing positive relationships; and knowing the differences between parent and teen responsibility.

Monday, October 27: "Helping Adolescents Feel Better About Themselves" will address the complexities of adolescent self-esteem, and our role in its development.

Monday, November 3: "How to Talk with Teens About Drugs and Alcohol" will teach us useful techniques for discussing this mystifying and frightening subject with our teens.

Each of the lectures will begin at 7:30 p.m. and will be followed by a question and answer period, at St. William's Church 1391 Main St., Rte. 38, Tewksbury.

Open house Sunday

Firefighters still make house calls, but they're inviting the public to visit them on Sunday. The Wilmington Fire Dept. will hold an open house from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The program will include demonstrations of techniques, exhibits of modern and antique equipment, and guest appearances by Smokey the Bear, Sparky the Fire Dog, and Pluggie the Talking Fire Hydrant. Every half hour, there will be a drawing for a free smoke detector. Firefighters Gary Robichaud and Bob Woods are shown attaching a publicity sign to the new ladder truck.

Rep. Miceli's October office hours

Representative James R. Miceli, who represents both Tewksbury and Wilmington on Beacon Hill, will hold his monthly office hours for constituents on the following dates:

Tewksbury: Tuesday, October 14 at the Town Hall from 9:30 to 11 a.m. and from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

Wilmington: Wednesday, October 15, at 4A Colonial Park Mall from 9:30 to 11 a.m. and from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

'Growing up' series for teens at Health Center

The Community Health Education Department of the Regional Health Center in Wilmington has announced the following teen programs in October.

Growing up female teaches 10 to 13-year-old girls about menstruation, female anatomy, hygiene and changes that occur in females and males during adolescence. Taught by Bridget M. McCane-Duerr, certified health educator, who has had extensive experience working with teens in athletics and she is a Babysitter Training course instructor.

This course will be offered Friday, October 10 from 3:15 to 5:30 p.m.

Growing up male teaches 11 to 14-year-old boys about changes boys can expect during puberty, hygiene, and understanding growth and development in males and females. Taught by Ricahrd W. Silveria who holds a bachelor's degree in health education and has a great deal of experience working with children and teens in athletics, recreation and after school programs. He also has experience in the area of psychology and counseling.

This course will be offered on Thursday, October 23 from 3:15 to 5:30 p.m.

Call 657-3910, ext. 567 for additional information and registration form. Pre-registration is a requirement for both programs.

Events scheduled AIM Headquarters

Haverhill keeps Cats winless, 27-6

Wildcat scrambling

Wildcat quarterback Dan Woods scrambles and looks for a receiver in the second half of Saturday's MVC contest. The scoreboard behind Woods tells the story of the young Wilmington team's third defeat without a victory this season.

Hillies stopped

WHS defender Tim Fay (73) moves in to help put a stop on a Haverhill Hillie.

Youth Soccer

Wilmington girls battle

The Wilmington II girls U-14 Wildcats battled a tough Wakefield II team to a 1-1 tie in their third youth soccer game of the season.

This was an exciting game by two aggressive and evenly matched teams. The game was scoreless until with only five minutes to go in the game, Wakefield scored on a breakaway.

To their credit, the Wilmington girls did not let down and came roaring back to score the tying goal with less than a minute left in the game.

The whole team played extremely well in this game, particularly at forward and halfback, as the Wildcats outshot the opposition by a 2-1 margin, but could only connect on one of the shots.

There were many stars in this game, they were led by Julie Robinson, Stacey Ouellette, Jennifer Bowen and Debbie Topping, all of whom played superbly.

Strong performances were also turned in by Marissa Volpe, Stacie LaCorcia and Brutt Cronin who made several game saving stops in goal and of course Malissa Masse, who scored the lone Wildcat goal.

Wilmington I Wakefield I

The Wilmington II girls U-14 Wildcats turned in a very strong performance as they overwhelmed the Wakefield III team and won their fourth game of the season, 5-0.

The Wildcats were in total control throughout this game with a 5-1 shot ratio on goal, and they kept Wakefield bottled up in their own end for most of the game.

Many of the Wildcats played very strong games on both offense and defense. The offensive barrage was led by Jennifer Bowen who scored two goals from her defensive sweeper position.

The other Wildcat goals were scored by forwards Stacey Ouellette, Jennifer Aprile and Malissa Masse the Wildcats' scoring machine who leads the team in goals scored.

The defense was very strong as they logged their second shutout in four games. The defensive stars were Tara Landers, Debbie Topping and Jill Surprenant at fullback. Marissa Volpe and Julie Robinson also turned in strong two-way performances at halfback.

Seeking answers

WHS coaches Jim Tildsley (kneeling) and Ed Harrison are searching for answers as their young team is 0-3 thus far.

Pote busts middle

Wilmington senior running back Tom Pote (35) busts up the middle for a good gain Saturday. Tom got the Wildcats off to a super start when he returned the game's opening kickoff for a touchdown.

Austin Prep wrapup

Cougars knot Dom Savio, 6-6

Austin Prep football

Austin Prep 6 Dom Savio 6
On Homecoming Weekend, September 27, the Austin Prep football Cougars gained a hard fought draw with the Dom Savio Spartans from East Boston.

The first half showed tight defense, with neither team scoring. In the second half the Cougars got on the board first when Damon Reinold (senior, Stoneham) ran 60 yards for a touchdown.

On the day Reinold gained 108 yards on 11 carries and scored the first touchdown for the Cougars this season.

With 1:45 left in the fourth period, Spartan halfback Brian Carrabes ran three yards for the six points. He was leading ground gainer, with 13 carries for 52 yards for Dom Savio.

In the overtime period, Austin failed to score on their possession. The Spartans were held to no points by the rugged defense of the Cougars, headed by Mark Stanuil (senior, Reading), and Brian Kelly (senior, Burlington). Austin had 10 first downs, while the Spartans had six.

In the yardage department, the Cougars had 35 attempts for 207 yards, while the Spartans had 30 carries for 120 yards.

Next Sunday, Austin Prep travels to Dilboy Field in Somerville for a 1:30 p.m. contest against Matignon.

Austin Prep soccer 6-2

At the mid point of their 1986 fall soccer season, the Austin Prep varsity soccer team sports a 6-2 record, with a 3-1 mark in the Catholic Central League.

The only league loss was a 2-0 whitewash at the hands of the defending league champions, the Marian Mustangs from Framingham.

The co-captains are the two leading scorers on this year's team, coached by Athletic Director John Doherty (North Reading).

Halfback Keith Gautreau (Senior, Rowley) has notched a team leading seven goals with two assists, while fellow captain Antone Lauria (senior, Beverly) has scored six goals and added six assists to his column.

Defense has been the strong point of this year's team, as they notched two shutouts in their first eight games and have allowed but 11 goals thus far, for a 1.27 average.

Jim Hetu (senior, Stoneham) has put together a string of over 240 consecutive minutes without allowing a goal while playing half of every game. The other netminder is Jeff Brine (junior, Burlington).

Experienced fullbacks are the trademark of a quality team, and the Cougars are blessed with two three year veterans to lead the back line.

Mike O'Connor (senior, Andover), and Mark Gualtieri (senior, Billerica) are the key to keeping the opponents away from the goal.

Having already seen a steady parade of scorers up in the forward line, the other leading scorers for the team, all having scored at least three goals thus far, are John Zujewski (junior, Salem) with six goals; Robert Regan (senior, Wakefield) with three goals; and Jim Simas (junior, Tewksbury) with three goals and three assists.

The biggest game of the season for the Cougars will be Tuesday, October 14 at home, when they host Marian. A victory is a must, if any hope of a championship is entertained. The team fully expects a return trip to the MIAA post-season tournament in Division

Desforge Westfield standout

Lisa Desforge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Desforge of Salem Street, Wilmington and a graduate of Wilmington High School, is a member of the 1986 Westfield State College women's cross-country team.

Coached by Carolyn Dewey, who enters her fourth year at Westfield, the Owls return seven letter winners from last season.

The Owls, who opened their season on Sept. 27 at Amherst College, will have a competitive schedule in 1986. Westfield won its first Massachusetts State College Athletic Conference championship last season and will again be one of the favorites to take home the championship.

Opponents on the 1986 schedule include conference rivals Fitchburg State, Salem State, North Adams State and non-conference opponents UMass-Boston, Smith College and the University of New Brunswick.

Shea paces Cougars

Cross country now 6-1
Paul Shea (junior, Stoneham) continues on his record assault, as he has never lost a dual meet or tri-meet race in two seasons of varsity competition, and he is just 20 seconds away from the course record at Austin Prep set in 1983 fall season by Bob Derrah (Tewksbury, ULowell varsity cross country team).

This season, Paul has led the team to a 6-1 record as of this date, and the team has set its sights on the Eastern Massachusetts Division II team title. Last season, the team finished in the top 10 and hopes to do even better this year.

Co-captains Sean McDermott (senior, Tewksbury) and Scott Whalen (senior, No. Andover) are right behind Shea, as the team suffered but a single loss by a narrow margin of 26-31 at the hands of perennial league champions Archbishop Williams, of Braintree.

The team will seek to defend its' Catholic Central League meet title, won last year at Curry College in Milton, on Sunday, November 2.

Skating season opens

The Wilmington Figure Skating Club is opening its' 1986-87 skating season. Watch the Town Crier for the grand opening of the new ice arena and the United States Figure Skaters of America Basic Skills ("Come Skate With Us") Program.

The club will hold its' annual skate and accessory sale before the opening of the rink.

The club is offering "Patch and Free Style" skating from noon to 2 p.m. at the Janis Rink in Lowell on Saturdays.

At a recent test session, held at the Winchester Figure Skating Club, Wilmington's Donnie Barker passed his "Preliminary Figures" test. Christina Felago, of Andover, passed her "Juvenile Free style" test.

For information regarding the "Basic Skills Program" and the "Patch Free Style Ice," call Susan Barker, 658-4681, or Susan Farkas, 658-2412.

TMHS girls breeze again

The Tewksbury High School boys' and girls' cross-country teams hosted Andover last week and the results followed the pattern set by all of the meets so far this season.

The girls won handily, while the varsity boys lost another heartbreaker. The junior varsity boys looked impressive.

The win put the girls' record at 5 and 0, tops in the Merrimack Valley Conference. The loss dumped the boys to 0 and 5, but their showing in most of the meets has been nowhere near as dismal as their record indicates.

As usual, Tewksbury's outstanding lead runner Bob Busch blitzed the field as he turned in his best time of the season, a solid 15:18 for the 2.8 mile TMHS layout.

Dave Kelleher, Jeff Parson and Brian Sturtevant ran well to take places third, six and eight, while Neil Olson completed the Tewksbury scoring with tenth.

Both Kelleher and Sturtevant lost close sprints to the finish with their Andover opponents, each giving a gutsy try, but falling just short. The result was an Andover 27 to 28 victory.

The junior varsity boys put on quite a show. Tim Martin led the pack with a fine first place finish. He was followed across the line by four more Tewksbury runners: Bill Erickson, Jim O'Callaghan, Ben Tyrrell and Tsuyoshi Fukuda. This Tewksbury sweep gave the Redmen a perfect score of 15 to Andover's 42.

The girls' solid team depth was on display in this meet once again. Andover's outstanding Kate Pierson was the individual winner, but team captain Krissie Connor led the Tewksbury onslaught. Connor in second, Paula Torode in third, Sue McLaughlin in fourth, Amy DiGiorgio in fifth, Rachel Smith in sixth, Joanne McNamara in seventh, Jennifer Harmon in eighth, Justine Short in ninth and Chrissy Juskiewicz in tenth.

In all, eight Tewksbury girls finished ahead of Andover's second runner.

This week the boys and girls teams both travel to Haverhill to take on Chelmsford and Haverhill on the Hillies' home course.

The boys will be looking for their first win of the season over Haverhill. The girls will be hoping to pull off the biggest upset of the cross-country season by defeating the two most powerful girls teams in the conference.

Homecoming queens

Saturday was Homecoming Day in Tewksbury, with the school selecting the queens of the respective classes during halftime of the Tewksbury-Methuen football game. The Redmen won, 14-6 to go 3-1 on the young season.

Pop Warner lives

Although Wilmington Pop Warner Football was discontinued three years ago, four local youths are keeping football alive for future high school teams.

The Reading Pop Warner A squad has welcomed three starters: Eric Heselton, guard/tackle; Mark Sweeney, tackle/linebacker and Bobby Pallazzi, noseguard.

The D team is pleased to have Joel Grinovich as fullback/linebacker.

The Reading league has also suffered shortages in recent years and is happy to have the enthusiastic

Good show

The TMHS band gave a first-rate performance at halftime Saturday.

Field hockey

Fifth shutout for TMHS

The Tewksbury field hockey girls scored six goals against Greater Lowell to record their fifth shutout of the season last week.

Senior forward Tricia Censullo scored twice to open the attack. Her second goal was assisted by Chris Blake.

Senior forward Chris Blake made it 3-0 with an unassisted goal. Senior fullback Kerri Beaulieu scored unassisted to end the first half.

Lynne Ploof scored the first goal of the second half. She was assisted by Kim Dziadosz. With two minutes left in the game, Jessica Miller scored off a pass from Lynne Ploof.

The Redmen battled the Wilmington Wildcats to a 1-1 tie. The girls played a very aggressive game against the strong Wilmington team.

Both goals game during the second half. Tewksbury's Chris Blake scored an unassisted goal one minute into the second half. At the seven minute mark, Wilmington came back to tie the score off a goal from Jen Connors.

The Tewksbury offense continued to pressure the Wilmington defense with several breakaways, but came up scoreless.

Redmen defense players Lori Nunziato, Karen Corbett, Jeanne Muise, Karen Toth, Kerri Beaulieu, Kris Romano and goalie Cathy Driscoll all played well.

Tewksbury upset the second place Chelmsford team 2-1 to end the week. Chelmsford dominated the game but came up one goal short at the end of the second half.

Tewksbury's Chris Blake scored the first goal of the game eight minutes into the first half on a breakaway from the 50 yard line.

Alison Murphy scored two minutes later for Chelmsford to tie the score. The winning goal was scored with five minutes left to play in the game. Chris Blake went down the field on a breakaway once again.

Youth soccer clinic

Many questions have arisen as to what the soccer clinic program is about. The clinic program is designed as an instructional program for interested children between the ages of five and eight.

Children playing for the clinic teams are involved in competition, but winning is not stressed. Rather, good sportsmanship, playing as a member of a team and learning the basic skills of soccer are the goals of the soccer clinic.

This program serves as an excellent introduction into the Tewksbury Youth Soccer program.

Registrations for the clinic program will be accepted at the intramural tryouts. Anyone with questions regarding the clinic program is urged to contact Ed
Flanagan (851-7580) or Joe O'Brien, (851-6193). Registration fee is $20.00

Fall soccer

Coach Jim Angelo's under 16 girls team overcame a two goal deficit in the first five minutes of play to come back and defeat a very strong North Andover team by a score of 4-3.

These girls are quickly establishing themselves as a force to be reckoned with in the Northern Middlesex Fall Soccer League, as they have now evened their record at two wins and two losses.

Sunday's standouts were goal scorers Jane Carey, Katie Bolton, Julie Hunt and Caroline Kondoleon; with a superb effort turned in by Kash Grzybinski.

Next Sunday the girls travel to Wilmington for their contest.

Vandal-proof station in planning stage

A vandal proof pumping station is being planned, to be constructed easterly of Ballardvale Street, in North Wilmington. The purpose is to pump water to a proposed water storage tank to be erected in the hilly area between Ballardvale Street and Andover Street, westerly of Camp Forty Acres.

The engineer is Bill Jones, of the firm of Dana F. Perkins & Sons. Preliminary plans were exhibited last Thursday to the Wilmington Water & Sewer Commissioners.

The building is to be constructed, owned and maintained by the Tambone Corporation of Stoneham. That company has an extensive building program easterly of Ballardvale Street in an industrial area. The new pumping station will be northerly of Research Drive, where one building has already been constructed, and more are being planned.

The pumping station will be 28 feet by 28 feet. There will be no windows. Heavy louvers are to be used for ventilation purposes. Electric wires, telephones, etc., are to be serviced by underground wires.

There is to be an emergency generator. Four pumps are being planned, with a total capacity of 1660 gallons a minute.

The water & sewer commissioners are planning to construct a water tank on the highest hill between Andover Street and Ballardvale Street. The tank will supplement the two existing water tanks, one on Kelley Hill, southerly of Shawheen Avenue, and the other on a hill off Hillside Way.

Both existing tanks store water to a height of 300 feet above sea level. The additional tank is also to be designed for that level, and will increase water pressure throughout North Wilmington, which in some places need additional pressure.

Birthday dance

On his ninetieth birthday, Bert Miller proved his agility by dancing with a belly dancer, Cara Mia. However, cutting the cake presented him was another matter -- it was a frosted sponge, not a sponge cake, and simply could not be cut. A large gathering of friends and relatives took part in the celebration, held at the home of his daughter and son-in-law, Ed and Doris Nash. Joining in the celebration was Bert's wife of 60 years, Nema.

births

BRUNELLE: Jennifer Lyndsey, first child to Mr. and Mrs. James Brunelle (Linda Pine) of Larkspur Road, Billerica on September 15 at Winchester Hospital.

Grandparents include Mr. and Mrs. Ruth and Harry Pine of Morse Avenue, Wilmington and Mrs. Lillian Brunelle of Beacon Street, Wilmington.

Great-grandmother is Janet Molison of Deming Way, Wilmington.

ORSBURN: Ryan Patrick, second child, second son to Mr. and Mrs. Brad (Susan Walsh) Orsburn of North Street, Stoneham on August 26 at Melrose-Wakefield Hospital. Grandparents are Catherine and Francis Walsh of Sheridan Road, Wilmington.

Ryan's brother is Jason Patrick, four and a half.

TeriLyn Durling, Stephen Chuha engaged

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Durling of Andover, formerly of Wilmington have announced the engagement of their daughter, TeriLyn to Stephen Chuha of Malden.

A 1980 graduate of Wilmington High School and Dean Junior College, Teri is currently working as a legal secretary for a Reading law firm.

Her fiancé is a principal with Bond Realty in Reading and Malden.

An April 1987 wedding is planned.

New library cards issued

The Wilmington Memorial Library has taken an important step on its way toward automation. On September 10 the library began issuing new computer cards to those Wilmington residents who use other automated libraries in the Merrimack Valley Library Consortium (MVLC). One hundred and sixty-one Wilmington residents have MVLC computer cards issued by these libraries. These MVLC cards will no longer be accepted. Those wishing to use the libraries in Andover, Billerica, Chelmsford, Dracut, Hamilton, Haverhill, Lowell, Methuen, North Andover, North Reading and Westford must have a new Wilmington computerized library card. The City of Lawrence is "going on line" in January, and will require the new Wilmington card.

Any Wilmington resident still holding a card from one of these other libraries should turn it in at the circulation desk on the main floor of the Wilmington Memorial Library. The new card will be issued immediately at no cost to the patron. Libraries belonging to the MVLC consortium will not issue Wilmington cards, and re-registration must take place at the Wilmington Library.

The Memorial Library will issue its computerized card to anyone previously registered at a MVLC library, or to any Wilmington resident wishing to do so. The old Wilmington Library card is to continue to be used until Wilmington "goes on line."

Beginning in early 1987, the Wilmington Memorial Library will begin to register all of its patrons who wish to get a computerized card. The library plans to have its 18,000 patrons registered within six months, and be on-line by mid-1987.

Wilmington residents who have cards from other MVLC libraries are encouraged to take a few minutes to obtain their new card. Those wishing to use an MVLC library must have the new Wilmington card as well. Call or stop in at the library if you have any questions.

Wilmington senior topics

Fuel assistance list

The COA is making a list of seniors who will be applying for fuel assistance. Call the center at 657-7595, leave your name, telephone number and source of income. We will be calling you next week as to the date and time of your appointment.

Halloween openings

There are still openings for the October therapeutic social Halloween party. It will be held at the Tewksbury/Wilmington Elks Hall in Tewksbury, Wednesday evening, October 29. Dinner will be served at 7. Music will be provided for dancing. A $3 non-refundable deposit will be requested when signing up.

Glaucoma screening

A glaucoma screening will be held at the Senior Center Tuesday afternoon, October 28 from 1 to 4. Glaucoma is a serious eye disease which can be controlled if detected early. This test is being given free of charge.

Fair November 29

The arts and crafts committee has set Saturday, November 29 as the date of the fall fair. Many seniors have been bags making articles for the fair at home and in the center. To make this year's fair in our new Center the greatest we will need many, many articles. Let's pull together making all types of articles knitted, crocheted, embroidered, metal, wood and other crafts that you may make that can be sold at the fair. Mitten of all sizes and colors are always our most popular requested item. If every senior who can knit or crochet makes two pairs of mittens we will be able to fill the large table. There are many closets at the Center if you wish to take articles in as you finish them, you are welcome to do so.

Leaf peeping in New England

By Robert Kilborn Jr.

IF a rainy spring and summer mean anything — and the scientists say they do — then the foliage in New England this month should be absolutely spectacular.

And when you consider that New England, fall foliage, and weekend getaways are virtually synonymous anyway, the region is definitely not to be missed this year.

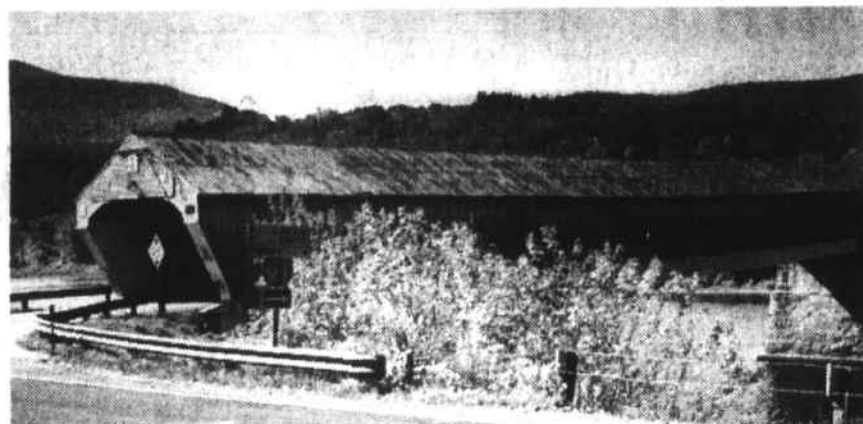

The only question is where to begin.

According to the scientists, the formula for gorgeous foliage is plentiful rain in the spring and summer months, coupled with warm, bright days and cool nights in early fall. New England has passed every test. Spring and summer 1986 were among the rainiest this century. And nighttime temperatures were dipping into the 30s even before September arrived. One week after Labor Day, extreme northern sections of New England were already showing what one newspaper called "a 10 percent flush of color."

Using Boston as a starting point — and most first-time visitors to New England do — here are three tours that are guaranteed to show you both beautiful foliage and the region's abundant charm. Each is ideal for a leisurely two- or three-day getaway weekend. Just one word of caution: Advance reservations are a must, at least for overnight accommodations.

Hanover — North Conway

Take I-93 to its junction with I-89 just north of Manchester, N.H. Then follow I-89 as it cuts through the scenic Lake Sunapee region of western New Hampshire. At Lebanon, N.H., turn north on Route 10 to Hanover, N.H., one of the nation's loveliest college towns.

...or passing by a covered bridge in New Hampshire, New England's fall foliage is breathtaking

After a look around the tweedy town of Hanover and the campus of Dartmouth College, continue north on Route 10 along the banks of the Connecticut River to Orford. This tiny village is dominated by "the Ridge," a row of seven magnificent mansions, whose broad lawns sweep gracefully down toward the river. Architectural critics have proclaimed them the finest group of Federal-style houses in the United States.

Turn east on Route 25A, north on 25, and northeast on 118 to the town of North Woodstock, western gateway to the famous Kancamagus Highway. The Kancamagus, also known as Route 112, bisects the White Mountains National Forest and offers irresistible "photo opportunities" that are too numerous to mention.

At the eastern end of the 35-mile-long road, you can turn north for a visit to North Conway, N.H., and its many factory-outlet stores, or south for your return to Boston via routes 16, 113, and I-93.

Growing into a name Wakefield in the early days

Editor's note: This is the second in a series of local town histories to appear at regular intervals in Middlesex East.

History of Wakefield — Part One

Early Days: Alewives and Goodwives.

By JIM ROUILLARD

It takes 230 years to get to Wakefield from Lynn.

And there's no way around it: you have to go through Reading first.

The Town of Wakefield, which began life (in the white man's tongue) as Lynn Village, has undergone four name changes since the late 1630s.

It has, in fact, been known as Wakefield only since 1868 — and it took acts of the legislature and of madness (the War of 1812) to detach the present town from its second mother, Reading.

Reading was incorporated as a town in 1644, and included the three present communities of Wakefield, Reading and North Reading.

And, for the first settlers and their goodwives it took no small effort to reach the current bounds of the town of Wakefield and old "Redding Pond" (Lake Quannapowitt) from the earlier coastal settlement of Lynn.

The first "Redding" settlers, according to William Eaton, in his tercentenary "History of Wakefield" (1944), crossed the Saugus River at its only fordable point, a short distance up-river of the Saugus Iron Works.

The settlers from Lynn came from a land dotted on early maps with forbidding and entertaining place names: Dungeon Hill, Wolf Pits, various swamps, Penny Bridge, Granny Skinner's Brook.

But to what did they come?

To more swamps, according to Eaton, but also to "Two beautiful lakes, two rivers rushing crystal waters eastward toward the ocean, a fair valley lying between lower hills."

There were also enormous flocks of wild pigeons, wild turkeys "exceeding fat, sweet, and in abundance," fish, grapes, blackberries, blueberries — "and also the Indians."

An earlier history in this series, of the Town of Stoneham, outlined the dim view that community's 19th-century historian took of the aboriginal stock.

Eaton, whose judgment is more favorable, points out that the first Bible ever printed in America (1663) was in the Indian language, and called "Um-Bibulum God."

And locally, Eaton maintains, the early Reading settlers found the natives generally very friendly, and willing to part with their land to the Reading and Lynn settlers for 16 pounds of sterling.

The deed for the land which the settlers bought (Reading's share was 10 pounds, contributed by 96 of the early settlers) was drawn in 1686, and names various Indians, including James Quonopohit, legal successors of George Nosenose, chief of the Naumkeag tribe.

Wakefield

IT TOOK MORE THAN TWO CENTURIES, four name changes and a fortune made in rattan, for Wakefield to achieve its present identification. But it was all worth it for the beautiful Middlesex County town which stretches from Crystal Lake to Lake Quannapowitt.

Babysitting course offered

A class that teaches babysitting skills to young people age 10 or older will meet four Wednesday afternoons, 3:30 to 5 p.m., beginning October 22 in the auditorium at New England Memorial Hospital in Stoneham. Local fire and police officials will speak to the group on accident prevention, safety, and what to do in an emergency. Also, a registered nurse will demonstrate first aid techniques.

Each class member will prepare a kit for future use "on the job," and will have an opportunity to assist in babysitting children at the NEMH Strawberry Mill Day Care Center during the last class session. Pre-registration for the class is recommended. Course fee is $15. For additional information, contact the Health Education Department at NEMH, 665-1740, ext. 426.

Tidbits!

Medical researchers at the University of California at Irving say parents should be more aware of the quality of air their children breathe, both indoors and out, reports National Wildlife magazine. Children are far more sensitive to air pollutants than older children or adults. The reasons: children need more air per unit of body weight to maintain proper metabolism and body temperature, and their smaller air passages collect more pollutants.

Wakefield

Sagamore George, whose Indian name was Wenepoyken, or Little Feather, produced three daughters, Petagunsk, Wattaquitusk and Petagoonaquah, affectionately called the Little Feathers, according to the staff of New England Journeys Magazine, publishers of "New England Indians".

"They were acknowledged the loveliest girls in New England — either Dutch, French, English or Indian — and they became the favorites of everyone with whom they came in contact in the Colony."

But the English couldn't pronounce their names, so they became known as Cicely, Sarah and Susannah.

Sagamore George, according to "New England Indians," received about $40 for his claims to the land comprising today's Wakefield, Reading and North Reading. But it was with this act that his formerly happy attitude seems to have undergone a reversal.

"For the first time in his life he became aware that his lands could be a source of income for him, and he tried to get paid for all those lands which the English had settled from Boston to Salem. He appealed to the General Court for redress."

The Court offered him 20 acres. Finally, after 18 years, the Court apparently lost patience with Sagamore George and refused to accept any more of his petitions.

Not surprisingly, the chief had probably long since lost all patience with the court — and when war broke out between settlers and Indians in 1676, Wenepoykin declared his intention to go to battle.

But he was 59, and his wife and the "Little Feathers," worried about a man of his age engaged in the rigors of wilderness war, persuaded him to become a "Praying Indian" instead, and move to the Christian Indian village of Wamesit (Chelmsford).

Since Eaton seems to have been eager to dispel the notion of unprovoked red savages descending upon peaceful settlers, it's probably time to dispel another notion: that all of the first settlers in new England were a rag-tag, impoverished lot.

The Pilgrims, it is true, were generally of humble origins, according to Barry's "History of Massachusetts":

"Few of them had been reared in opulence or luxury..."

But as for the Puritans (like our lot who settled Wakefield), "their ministers were men of standing and influence. Of the laity, many were well versed in public affairs, possessed fortunes...to furnish both followers and funds...equip not one boat but a fleet..."

"The history of the Massachusetts Colony is of a stamp very different from that of the Plymouth Colony. Its enterprises were prosecuted with vigor and success. Its superior advantages gave it an immediate ascendancy."

In 1639, according to Eaton, "sundry inhabitants of Lynn petitioned the Colony Court 'for an inland plantation at the head of their bounds.' This petition was granted upon condition 'that the petitioners shall, within two years, make good proceeding in planting, so as it may be a village, fit to contain a convenient number of inhabitants...'"

By 1644, seven houses and seven settled families were evidently deemed "convenient" and the Court ordered that "Linn Village" should take the name of Reading.

Eaton outlines the evolution of Wakefield's name: Lynn Village, 1638-9; Redding, 1643; Reading, 1644; South Reading, 1812; Wakefield, 1868.

The first settlers of Lynn Village, according to Eaton, though labeled by the Town of Lynn as "deserters," were a hard-working, respectable group, even if Elizabeth, wife of Isaac Hart and "an eccentric person," was among those arrested and imprisoned, for 10 months, in a Boston jail when the devil came to Massachusetts during the famous witchcraft "episode" of 1692.

Deserters or respectable folk, they came in any case to what is now Wakefield, leaving Lynn, according to Eaton, because the coast land was not entirely suitable for permanent settlement, and there was some dissatisfaction with the allotment of lands there.

Many of the early records were not preserved, so Eaton supposes the first group traveled up the Abbousett (Saugus) River in canoes and by an old Indian trail, crossing the ford at Saugus and up present-day Nahant Street, south of "Castle Rock."

Eaton notes early "problems": construction of the meeting house (about 1645) the most magnificent scenery in Massachusetts to Williamstown, Mass., which rivals Hanover, N.H., as the region's most classic college town.

At Williamstown, turn north onto US Route 7 for a ride through beauty and history. The American colonial forces beat back a British attack at Bennington, Vt., in 1777. A 306-foot-high obelisk commemorates the event. The monument is open to the public and affords superb views of the Green Mountains.

Manchester Center, a few miles north of Bennington and a short trip west on Route 30, is a genteel resort town full of stately old homes, chic shops, and other attractions. One of the latter is Hildene, the elegant 24-room estate built by Robert Todd Lincoln, son of the 16th President of the U.S. It is open to the public.

Quite a bit further north, Middlebury features the beautiful liberal-arts college of the same name, plus the University of Vermont's famous Morgan horse farm. Routes 125 east, 100 and 100B north, then US

2 south, will then take you through the heart of the scenic Green Mountain National Forest to Montpelier, Vt., with its gold-domed Doric State House, set against a forested hillside.

If you're in a hurry to get back to Boston, take I-89 from Montpelier. If not, try going on to Barre via US Route 302. This small city is the home of the world-famous Rock of Ages granite quarries and craftsmen center — both of which are open to the public.

From Barre, take Route 14 south through the picturesque farming country watered by the Second Branch of the White River to the town of White River Junction, where you'll rejoin I-89 for the trip to Boston.

Litchfield — Stockbridge

Leave the Massachusetts Turnpike (I-90) at Sturbridge, home of the famous Old Sturbridge Village. After a tour of the village, a recreated 1830s New England farming town, take I-84 through the scenic hills of northern Connecticut and the city of Hartford. Just west of Hartford, switch to state Route 4 west, then 118 west, to Litchfield, Conn., surely one of the most beautiful towns in the U.S. It was the home of theologian Henry Ward Beecher, author Harriet Beecher Stowe, and patriot Ethan Allen. The town is full of elegant colonial houses and is a state historic district.

From Litchfield, continue west on Routes 202 and 341 to Kent. At the town of Kent, take US Route 7 north through Cornwall Bridge, Conn., (with its quaint one-lane covered bridge) back into Massachusetts and the trim, leafy Berkshire Mountains towns of Sheffield, Great Barrington, and, finally, Stockbridge. The Corner House in Stockbridge is a treasury of Norman Rockwell paintings.

Just north of Stockbridge, turn off US Route 7 onto US Route 20 east, which winds past the Becket and Chester-Blandford state forests and along the West Branch of the Westfield River. At the town of Westfield, take US Route 202 north to rejoin the Massachusetts Turnpike at Exit 3 for the return trip.

There is no protocol for enjoying New England's fall foliage. It's in abundance on every mountainside and village green, and New Englanders are used to seeing and dealing with hordes of October visitors. Just keep in mind that roads, scenic overlooks, motels, restaurants, factory-outlet stores, and gas stations may be crowded, weekends.

Q & As

The U.S. Customs Service gets many questions about travel regulations. As a service to the public, it publishes "Ask Customs."

Q. — On a trip to Canada recently I bought liquor in a U.S. "duty-free" shop and took it on my trip. When I returned with part of that purchase I was surprised to have to pay duty on it. Why couldn't I include this in my exemption?

A. — In the United States the term "duty-free" refers to a shop where a variety of items including liquor are sold free of tax and duty on the condition that they be consumed outside the United States. Items bought in U.S. duty-free stores are dutiable every time they return to the United States. Because the liquor wasn't bought outside the United States, you couldn't include it in your exemption.

Where credit is due

Have you ever gone to a bank for a car loan and been rejected? Perhaps you've applied to American Express for a credit card, only to be surprised with a notice in the mail stating that your credit rating isn't good enough to qualify you for a card.

The first thing that might come to mind in both of these cases is "I thought I had good credit, I thought I earned enough income to qualify, so how come I'm not getting what's coming to me?"

You may think you've got a loan coming to you, but the local credit bureau probably doesn't think you deserve it. Or the credit card, or the mortgage, for that matter, regardless of how you see your credit picture.

That's because the local credit bureau is where all the information on how well — or poorly — you pay your bills is stored. And since all banks, credit card companies and department stores call upon credit bureaus to supply them with information on your credit habits, it is imperative that credit bureaus have a "clean record" with your name on it.

This is where things get sticky, because, as stated, you may think you've got a pretty good credit rating, but in reality you may not be paying your bills fast enough to be qualifying you as a first class credit risk.

Just as an example: banks allow mortgages to pay their monthly payments up to fifteen days late. Many borrowers take advantage of this grace period. However, you may decide to apply for a loan to purchase, say, a new sail boat. If the loan application is with a different lending institution, that institution will call the local credit bureau for a rundown on your payment habits. A little computer somewhere has recorded that you pay your mortgage payment fifteen days late every month. The second lending institution may decide that this information means you are a poor credit risk, and may turn down your application for a loan on that basis.

All along you thought you were doing a great job of paying your bills, only to learn that you now don't possess a first class credit rating. You probably wouldn't be rejected on the aforementioned condition alone, but coupled with a history for paying your phone bill late and missing an occasional payment on your washing machine may spell credit troubles for you down the road.

You may be thinking that none of this is fair, yet according to Mike Pottle, whose Focus Financial Services recently acquired the Lynn Credit Bureau, ninety-eight percent of the time credit bureau information works in favor of the borrower, not against him.

"The majority of people pay their bills promptly," he says. "The idea of having this information available to lenders willing to loan money out is a very good thing. People who don't pay their bills get bad credit and probably aren't going to get a loan, and this is probably not a bad idea."

It's not a bad idea to the guy who pays his bills on time because it helps to keep down the cost of lending money. "Otherwise the cost of carrying these bad credit risks would be passed back to the reliable customers," Pottle notes.

A former vice-president of the Bank of Boston, Pottle decided more than a year ago to get out of the banking business and into his own business. He formed Focus Financial Services, which has its main headquarters in Plymouth, and currently employs twenty-three people. His company has quickly grown in several directions, the most recent being the acquisition of the Lynn Credit Bureau, a company that has been in existence for nearly seventy-five years.

Pottle explains just how a credit bureau such as the Lynn Credit Bureau goes about gathering information on all of us borrowers: "The information is gathered in a variety of ways. Primarily companies report to us how their customers make their payments. For example, if you have a car loan, the bank will report how you make your payments. This information is exchanged all the time."

This exchanging of information on how people pay their bills has been going on for over a century. It started as a part of local chambers of commerce. Members exchanged information on who was and who wasn't paying their bills as a means of keeping away bad credit risks.

Most of the credit bureaus in existence today have been around for many years. It would be very difficult to start one nowadays, mainly because of the great expense of tying into large data bank companies such as TRW. It was this obstacle that prompted Mike Pottle to seek out and purchase a successful existing credit bureau, particularly one with an already established sound reputation.

"Sound reputation" is not an easy thing to come by when you are in the credit business. Just ask Mike. "There is definitely a 'big brother' image associated with the credit bureau business," he states, adding he doesn't exactly want to change that aspect. "No, actually I endorse it. As a matter of fact, it works well within the framework of the business. It provides a value for people with good credit ratings, and for people who don't, it's a value to lenders."

The Big Brother of the lending business will follow you anywhere, even as far away as the west coast. "Say you don't pay your car loan here in Massachusetts," Pottle points out, "and you move to California and apply for a car loan. You definitely won't get it. Your record will follow you. It's like a prison record. Once it's there, it's there."

The Lynn Credit Bureau established its good reputation by maintaining and reporting accurately the credit of individual consumers. Reporting this inand parsonage — and the setting-out of a burying ground on the north side of Church Street.

The first church records, in 1648, indicate a membership of sixty men and women, the death of the minister, and the issuance of a license to one Francis Smith to sell intoxicating liquors.

In 1675, a little upriver from the Saugus ford, a dam was built which blocked the alewives, which had been used to spawn in Reading Pond and provide the settlers with a good source of food.

The town protested the dam, to no avail.

So, like Wenepoykin and the Little Feathers, the settlers and goodwives of early Wakefield had to settle for patience and prayer, and learn to do without the alewives and their roe.

St. Patrick's night Oct. 15 at Prince Restaurant

You've heard of Saint Patrick's Day; now there's "Saint Patrick's Night in October," and it's all courtesy of The Castraberti family, owners of The Prince Restaurant, Route One Southbound in Saugus.

Scheduled for Wednesday, October 15, this year's festivities will feature the Irish folk songs of the Prince Restaurant's resident artist, John Corcoran.

As in years past, the Castraberti family will be providing the food and refreshments plus the use of the restaurant to the Massachusetts Chapter of the National Neurofibromatosis Foundation (NNFF).

The purpose of this fifth annual event is to raise much needed funds to be used by NNFF for research aimed at finding a cause and cure for neurofibromatosis (NF), more commonly known as "the Elephant Man's disease."

A member of the Board of Directors of the Massachusetts Chapter of NNFF, Arthur Castraberti said he took it upon himself to do "whatever I could to help the dedicated professionals who are working every day to find a cure."

For that reason, he donates all of the proceeds from "Saint Patrick's Night in October" to NNFF. And in addition to the admission fee, funds are also raised from an auction and raffle which will be held throughout the evening.

"We anticipate that this year's event will be even more successful than those we have had in the past," Castraberti said. "After all, the more money we can raise, the better the chances are of finding a cure."

Tickets and additional information regarding the October 15 date can be obtained by contacting the Prince Restaurant, Rte. 1, Saugus, or Karen Peluso of Lynnfield.

The Secret's Out Experience...

If you haven't discovered our sensational sunset reception, you don't know what you're missing... It's almost a catered affair you can call your own. Carved meats, piping hot entrees, and chilled seafood overflow our lusciously laden 16' buffet table. Plus assorted salads, fresh fruits and vegetables. And a terrific selection of cheeses. And it changes daily. Just for you. Monday through Friday, from 5 to 8 p.m.

And it's absolutely free.

Depending on your mood, there's a spot at Juliet's you're sure to cover. You'll find yourself warming up to our cool colors, our contemporary music spun by a D.J. — with an occasional "oldie" thrown in to please even a cynic.

And to top off the great club atmosphere, fine food, and cozy bar, head-spinning imagery weaves magic on 10 video monitors near the dance floor.

For business or after-business group entertaining, give us a call in advance. We'll prepare a special feast and even add extra cocktail waitresses to serve your guests.

After all, an evening at Juliet's can truly be a "catered affair."

Roving

formation accurately is where the irony of the business can get to Mike. "A customer who doesn't pay his bills will get mad at us, but it's a case of shooting at the messenger. We weren't the ones who didn't pay his bills, he was."

In some extreme cases, it can take many years to clear a bad record with a credit bureau. "In the case of bankruptcy, a bad record will stay with you from seven to ten years," Mike says. "Otherwise, your record will be clear in about a year."

If an error is made by the credit bureau, a customer can come in and it will be corrected immediately, Pottle assures us. You can also go to a credit bureau at any time to find out why you've been turned down for a loan.

The man mainly responsible for building the reputation of the Lynn Credit Bureau is Ed Durgin, who started with the company nearly forty years ago and has been with it ever since.

He says, "It's been my experience that ninety-eight percent of the people are honest and pay their bills on time. Only a very small percentage is a problem. You may be surprised to hear this, but we deal more with the positive people. There's never a day that goes by that I can't help somebody out, or help a client steer clear of a bad credit risk."

According to Ed, his company has helped to rehabilitate more debtors than it's had to collect from, and once people see why they were turned down, his company can help them get back to square one. He adds, "After all, our clients are interested in extending credit, not denying it."

Red Cross courses offered

The following American Red Cross Safety Educational Courses are scheduled in the Eastern Middlesex Region:

CPR-Modular — Saturday, October 18, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Melrose.

Standard First Aid — Mondays, October 20 through December 15, 6 to 8 p.m., Medford.

Advanced Lifesaving — Tuesdays, October 14 through December 2, 6:30 to 9:30 p.m., Medford.

All courses require pre-registration. For further information phone 665-1351.

Blood donors needed

The need for blood is always growing which means the need for donors continues to grow also. The Eastern Middlesex Region of the American Red Cross of Massachusetts Bay contributes significantly to the 1500 units that are required daily in Massachusetts and Maine. The only way to maintain an adequate and safe supply of this vital commodity is for healthy individuals to donate their time and blood whenever possible.

An important drive in this area will be at the K of C Hall, North Ave., Wakefield, on Friday, October 17, from 2:30 to 7:30 p.m.

Please help make it a success. Call 665-1351 for additional information or to make an appointment.

A TOTALLY NEW KIND OF FIGURE SALON... ... Where Great Results are No Sweat.

Leg Table

Waist, Tummy, Hip Table

Here's How It Works.

At Slender You®, six different motorized tables do the hard work for you. Each machine is designed to exercise a specific part of your body—stomach, hips, legs and upper arms. Rather than building muscle (which conventional workouts often do), the Slender You® concept helps to tone and firm your muscles, while breaking down unwanted "cellulite." And unlike traditional exercise, a Slender You® shape up leaves you feeling refreshed and energized, not fatigued and out of breath.

Your First Session Is On Us.

We're so positive you'll like what you find at Slender You®, we're offering a free first workout and figure analysis. You can see how you like it, and then decide whether to make another appointment. You're under no obligation.

No Contracts or Membership Fees.

At Slender You®, you pay as you go. No expensive memberships, no advance payments and no obligations. You can quit whenever you'd like. So try the Slender You workout. You've got nothing to lose but inches and pounds. And that's where we can help.

23 at 7 P.M. at the Central Square Library (45 Pearl St., Cambridge). St. Gallo has recently returned from a two month trip through El Salvador and Nicaragua. Her experiences, insights and "political sense" will help us understand the role of the U.S. in Central America.

The program is sponsored by the Central American Task Force of the Boston Mobilization For Survival. Admission is free. For more information, please call 354-0008.

AGING RELATIVE

"Understanding Your Aging Relative" is a five week course which will be held Thursday evenings from 7 to 9 p.m. beginning Oct. 23 at the Senior Center, 27 Maple Street, Arlington.

To register, or for course information, please call Muriel Ellman in the Woburn office of Mystic Valley Mental Health Center at 935-8150 or Jackie Keshian at 646-1000, ext. 4729.

The workshop series is designed to help people with aging relatives in understanding the process of aging, how it affects family life, and how to deal with the special problems created by aging parents, spouses or other relatives.

Fee schedule is available for individuals or couples. Partial scholarships are also offered. Registration is requested by Oct. 16.

Co-sponsors are Visiting Nurse and Community Health, Mystic Valley Mental Health Center and Arlington Council on Aging.

CRAFT FAIR

Esprit de Corps Adult Precision Skating Team will present a Holiday Craft Fair in the Hayden Recreation Centre Auditorium, 24 Lincoln Street (Off Worthen Road) in Lexington on Sunday, Oct. 26 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Artisans from all over New England will participate. Returning this year is John Marmarus, Knot Holes and Wood Chips, from Barnstead, N.H. John has a unique line of hand crafted wood products.

Proceeds from the fair will help to support team trips to Eastern and National Precision Team Championships next February and April. Admission is $1.00 for adults, $.50 for Senior Citizens and children aged 6-16. Dealer space is available. Call Joan at 862-1697 or Beverly at 862-2164 after 6:30 p.m.

COMPENSATION

Associated Industries of Massachusetts will sponsor a one day "Compensation Conference" on Thursday, Oct. 23, from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Marriott Hotel in Newton.

This workshop is designed for presidents, general managers, compensation specialists, employment representatives, salary administrators, and others who are responsible for compensation in your organization.

This is a comprehensive one day program which will give participants what they need to know about executive and middle management compensation, compensation trends and projections, performance appraisal and pay and sales incentive plans.

All participants will receive a copy of AIM's 1986 Massachusetts Compensation Study; a statewide survey of wages and personnel policies and benefits.

Registration fees are $135.00 per person for AIM members and $175.00 per person for non-members. Lunch is provided. To register, call Carol Schaeffer at AIM, (617) 262-1180.

PEN WOMEN

TORAH

The members of Temple Shalom Emeth cordially invite interested families to participate in a joyous Simchat Torah celebration and service on Friday evening, Oct. 24 at 7:15 p.m. at the Temple, 16 Lexington St., Burlington.

The holiday Simchat Torah celebrates the completion of the year's cycle of Torah readings and the beginning of the new cycle. Participants in the service will receive flags and march in processions around the synagogue.

As part of the service, new students in the Religious School, including this year's class of 23 first-graders, will be welcomed with a special consecration ceremony.

Before the service, families of all Religious School students will enjoy dinner together in the social hall at 6 p.m. Dessert for everyone will follow the service.

Temple Shalom Emeth is a reform synagogue serving several communities in the Burlington area through programs for every age. Guests are always warmly welcomed at Temple functions. For more information, please phone the Temple of 272-2351.

Attorney Berenson joins Wakefield law firm

By DOUG BOYLE

WAKEFIELD — The law offices of Wakefield Town Meeting Moderator Albert J. Turco are taking on an international flair with the addition of Lawrence I. Berenson as a partner in the firm.

Although the partnership is a new one, the working relationship between Turco and Berenson go back to their days together with the ITT Corporation, where Berenson was a vice president and general counsel for the ITT Grinnell Industrial Piping, Inc. and Turco was deputy general counsel for the ITT Electrical Products Group.

Along with the business background that Berenson brings to the partnership, also comes a background steeped in various fields of law, including a stint with the Massachusetts Defenders Committee serving as a public defender in Chelsea.

From that point after his graduation from law school, Berenson went on to work with the firm of Crane, Inker, and Oteri, where he picked up many of the finer points of law, before entering the field of business law with the Sperry Corporation, of Pennsylvania.

It was while Berenson was with Sperry that he picked up an international flair travelling to such diverse points of the globe as Korea, Tokyo, Mexico, Hong Kong, London, Stockholm, and Paris.

It was in this last city, that Berenson cut his teeth on an international contract that showed him some of the workings of the Communist government of the U.S.S.R., as he hammered out a contract between that government's Aeroflot Airlines and Air France over the licensing rights to a software system developed for Air France by Sperry.

It is this type of negotiation experience plus 20-years of learning how to study people that Berenson will bring to the law firm that has branched out from its early business of just business clients to the varied field including: personal injury, domestic relations, real estate, wills and trusts, and environmental law.

Berenson has culled some of his experience in the law field from his father who was a lawyer for 50-years. However, he did not stop there, as he attained his education from Clark University, where he received an A.B. in Psychology in 1963. He went on from there to Georgetown University Law Center where he graduated with a Juris Doctorate in 1966.

Education has not stopped for Berenson, who like Turco, believes in a continuing education program on law subjects such as estate planning, and real estate law.

In his spare time, Berenson does find time to contribute to his community in a positive way. The Newton resident is active in the Boston Jewish community as far as their many charitable programs. He is a member and past chairman of the Young Professionals Division of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies, and during the summer is active in Temple Israel in Hull.

Berenson told Middlesex East, "My maturity and ability to deal with people is one of my assets," and the people of the area will have the chance to find out how these abilities are by getting in touch with Berenson at 245-1184.

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

Folks, you may see one washing or painting a wall, another checking out the equipment, and an engine being overhauled in the rear of the station. Routine duties I agree, but, ten minutes later all hell may break loose. The bells ring, the horn gives an eerie blast, and the engines let off a deafening roar as they come to life and speed out of the station.

All these are material expendable things, but the men at the controls or holding on the sides and rear are living, breathing human beings whose lives are in jeopardy on every call. Yes, even a false alarm. I'm talking of course about a group of men for whom I have the greatest respect and admiration, the firefighters. They are constantly in danger of injury when fighting a fire, floors may collapse, a roof beam may break away or a wall may crumble, sending a shower of bricks on the men below. Woodchips holds all of them in high esteem.

Some women marry for money, then repent in mink. My wife asked me, "Why don't you bring me candy and flowers like you did when you were courting me?" I smiled and said, "Dear, no one keeps feeding a fish worms 'after' he's caught it." I had to duck after that one because she has a 'perfect right.' Her left isn't bad either.

Chiquita wants to divorce her husband. She thought that she was the 'top banana' in his life, but found out that she was only 'one of the bunch.' He has 'appealed' to her not to 'split.' Most women would rather have 'poverty with love' than luxury without it.

My Army psychiatrist told me I was crazy. I demanded a second opinion and he said, "OK, you're ugly too!" He had asked me if I like bathing beauties, and I said, "I don't know doc, I never gave one a bath." "Did you go to school, stupid?" he asked. "Yes," I said, "and I came out the same way."

My wife told me she was thinking of getting a part-time job. "Look here," I exclaimed, "just stick to your cleaning, ironing, washing and cooking, no wife of mine is ever going to go to work." Folks, if you think that your kitchens, bedrooms and closets are 'postage stamp' size, you ought to visit a submarine on a Navy Day open house. You will go home thinking that every room is ballroom size.

A Woburn locksmith was invited to be the 'keynote' speaker at Yale. His subject was, 'The Key to Success,' dedication, diligence, hard work and an uncle who leaves you a million dollars.

Years ago people in my neighborhood were concerned about each other. They would 'run over' to help without a moment's hesitation. Today, some of them would 'run you over' if you didn't get out of the way.

In a first aid course, Frank Mazzoni of Wilmington was asked, "what would you do if you found out you had rabies?" Frank shouted, "I'd bite my boss."

I say that 'the spoken word is mightier than the sword.' The British Statesman Sir Winston Churchill was told by Lady Astor who hated him, "Sir Winston, were I your wife I'd poison your tea." "Madame," said Sir Winston, "were I your husband, I'd drink it!"

"We can't all be heroes," Mark Twain said. "Some of us must sit on the curb and applaud as they proudly go marching by."

The strongest day of the week is Sunday, all the others are 'weak days.' Perhaps 95 percent of us answer a telephone call by saying, "Hello." Now tell me folks, how do you end the conversation? Some say, "so long - see you - take care - I'll be talking to you - or, thanks for calling," and please believe me on this one, "to-do-lu." The prize goes to my friend and former letter carrier who ends my call to him by saying, "buzz off buzzard."

Congratulations to Nicholas Apalakos, of Stoneham who was presented the Stoneham's Citizen of the year award by my good friend Robert Skelley, president of the Chamber of Commerce.

Woodchips is happy to hear that Paul Rao, an 'upholsterer' who wasn't feeling too well has 'recovered' nicely. I know that summer is over, my neighbor Gary Connors just returned the lawn mower he borrowed in April.

Many readers know of the love and admiration that I have for people whose roots are in Nova Scotia. Many of them with whom I worked in the Boston Navy Yard were invited to my home during the nineteen years of our association. My father took keen delight in telling them that Cape Breton Island was discovered by Giovanni Caboto, an Italian navigator who explored for England. My father was born in Sardinia, and there's nothing 'fishy' about that.

Woodchips loves you, Kristian Morris of Tewksbury, for leading the assembly in the Pledge of Allegiance. The occasion was Tewksbury's Fire Department open house. Kristian, who I guess is about six years old, is the granddaughter of Acting Fire Chief James Morris. God bless you young lady.

Dora Hirtle of Wilmington sent me a letter about a year ago telling me she loved some of my poems. Well Dora, I'm returning the compliment now, saying I'm happy to read that you have won an award for a beautiful pastel entitled, "Heather and the Shell." The only canvas that I'm familiar with was where I usually ended on as a boxer in my younger days.

I'm proud of you Richard Davidson, son of Carol and Dick Davidson of Tewksbury. Richard graduated recently from the United States Merchant Marines. They, during WW II served with honor and distinction, bringing personnel, weapons and supplies, thereby guaranteeing that America will be forever free. "Carry on, sir!"

The New England Telephone Company crew installed a conduit for underground wiring along Route 62 in North Reading. I remember helping to install a 'trunk' line to the elephant house at the Stone Zoo. It was necessary because the 'Lions' were always busy. I remember watching the animals playing poker. "Why aren't you playing?" I asked one sitting alone. "They won't let me because I'm a 'Cheetah.'"

I always put jokes like that near the end of the column; otherwise you may not continue reading.

My wife Kathy works part-time as a change-maker at an MTA subway station. After 25 years of married life this is the second time she's making sense, the first was when she married me!

Nature fact

1986 might mark the beginning of a caviar race with the Russians...thanks to Sergei Doroshov, a Soviet caviar expert who defected to the United States in 1977. With Doroshov's help, Californians may succeed in raising the first completely American domesticated offspring of sturgeon, whose eggs are known as caviar, reports National Wildlife magazine. The delicacy should sell for about $800 a pound in this country.

MOVIE REVIEWS Rochelle Flynn

Playing for keeps Short Takes

Playing for Keeps Starring Daniel Jordano, Matthew Penn, Leon W. Grant, Jimmy Balo, Harold Gould. Directed by Bob Weinstein and Harvey Weinstein. Production by Alan Brewer and the Weinsteins. Written by Jarema Leven and the Weinsteins. Rated PG-13 (profanity, sexual situations).

You can always tell if a movie is an exploitation film by looking at the names of the cast members. If a goodly number are relatives of famous people, or someone who was once an actor, you know you have a ticket to a true hit and run movie.

What this means is that the advertising budget is bigger than the filmmaking budget. After it's unloaded into shopping mall cinemas and the local teenage population has spent its allowance, the flick is rushed out of town, usually within a week or two. Such films as Playing for Keeps, are then quickly dubbed and dumped into foreign markets, where, the filmmakers hope, the inhabitants of places like Nepal will mistake Matthew Penn for his brother Sean. This usually results in a hit, if you do your evaluating by Hollywood dollar signs.

Of course, the only reason any thinking adult or bored teenager would attend Playing for Keeps is if he or she is in need of a good nap, because this flick has broken the golden rule of exploitation films — it doesn't keep the action going.

Everything else is here from the scantily clad girls to a loud soundtrack to the modern villian, a real estate developer with a proposed chemical dump site. However, a coherent plot that doesn't rely on the soundtrack is what was needed even more than better production values.

Writers/directors/producers Bob and Harvey Weinstein simply pulled in contacts they knew in the music business and wrote a script around the songs, sort of. It's an old tune, but when Judy Garland and Mickey Rooney used to put on a show, you could at least count on entertainment, even if it was corny. Not so here. The only guarantee this film can make is that for the 103 minutes that talentless teenagers try to start a rock 'n' roll hotel, you should enjoy a relaxing snooze.

Short Takes

Tough Guys may have a strong cast with Burt Lancaster and Kirk Douglas, but it wimps out with a spineless script. The two veteran actors play aged convicts released into a world they are ill equipped to handle. Instead of relying on intellectual humor, the script deteriorates into silly sight gags and a preposterous ending. Rated PG-13.

Half Moon Street is an insomniac's delight. Fifteen minutes into this snoozer concerning a politician and intellectual-turned-call-girl, you'll be as sound asleep as the scriptwriters who penned this turkey about a political assignation. Rated R.

Crocodile Dundee is the movie to look for if you're in need of a little action, adventure and

ARCHIE LONG (KIRK DOUGLAS, LEFT) and Harry Doyle (Burt Lancaster) are a pair of notorious train robbers who face the strange new world of Los Angeles in the 1980s when they are released from jail after 30 years imprisonment in "Tough Guys." The action-comedy was directed by Jeff Kanew and produced by Joe Wizan from an original screenplay written by James Orr and Jim Cruickshank. "Tough Guys" is a Touchstone Pictures presentation in association with Silver Screen Partners II and is being distributed by Buena Vista.

romance to spark up your life. A light-hearted movie about an Australian legend who visits America for the first time, it is Paul Hogan as the crocodile man who is a real stand-out in this flick, thanks to his comedic timing and tough guy veneer. Rated PG-13.

Blue Velvet is the kind of movie people are either going to love or hate. There can't be a middle ground because this story of a boy's first encounter with evil as he rescues a damsel in distress is just too strange to appeal to middle America. A perverse sense of humor will help you sit through this one comfortably. Rated R.

The Name of the Rose is a truly off-beat film in which Sean Connery plays a sleuth in a medieval monastery. This film is a visual wonder that assumes the audience is intelligent enough to understand three-syllable words, and it will keep you guessing whodunnit while proving that the Middle Ages was no bowl of cherries. Rated R.

The Boy Who Could Fly is a charming fantasy the likes of which the American film industry rarely produces. This disarming film about a teenager's secret world is told without a lot of glitz and with the most completely realistic special effects you've ever seen. Rated PG.

Where the River Runs Black is the personification of an Amazonian legend that is a beautiful story accompanied by breath-taking scenery that is so painstakingly slow in the telling you'll be ready to scream by the time the final credits roll. Rated PG.

Morons from Outer Space is a campy, low-budget comedy that is really quite funny if you don't have high-brow expectations. A British import, it takes our most revered science fiction flicks and presents them in an entirely new light. Rated PG-13.

Eight Million Ways to Die has more cocaine, blue language and bloodletting than has been seen since Scarface was remade. However, Jeff Bridges and Roseanna Arquette bring a depth and humor to their characters that helps to override the convoluted script.

Down By Law is kind of like the Three Stooges for an art crowd. This odd, comically off-center story of two losers whose lives are turned around by a sunny, bumbling Italian has a certain naivete and charm that is quite appealing. Rated R. . . .

There will be a small element of surprise for the afternoon's program for the Friday, October 10, 1:30 P.M. meeting of Chapter 1124, AARP to be held at the Melrose Highlands Congregational Church, 355 Franklin Street, Melrose. President Carolyn Norton of Melrose will preside.

and to the Samoset Resort in Maine, as well as announcing what will be in the works for later in the year.

Melrose Chapter 1124 of AARP, Inc. is a regional unit and cities included on the chapter's roster are: Melrose, Malden, Lynnfield, Wakefield, Stoneham. However, members from Woburn, Saugus and Wilmington are also joining the ranks.

The Program Committee is keeping silent about who and what is involved for this program. Members will just have to come and find out — and listen closely to the introduction!

During the short business session, AARP members will hear from Leonard Dergay of Teading, Legislative Reporter on current state legislation concerning bills important to older citizens. Leonard Gebhard of Melrose will also report on the outcome of the two September trips to the Heritage Plantation

The Gig is a little picture with a lot of heart about amateur jazz musicians who get their first crack at the big time — a resort in the Catskills. While the scope of the film may be small, it is made particularly enjoyable by a fine cast, especially Wayne Rogers and Cleve Little.

The Fly is a gross-out scarefest laced with tragic overtones and may well be the quintessential horror flick of all times. Jeff Goldblum, in his finest performance to date, plays a scientist who manages to get mixed up, literally, with a fly, and the results are not for the faint of heart. Rated R. ....

Stand By Me is a nostalgic film about the growing pains and rituals of four pre-teen boys that was lovingly directed by Rob Reiner. This sensitive, funny flick about one last adventure before entering junior high is surprisingly based on a Stephen King novella. Rated R. ....

Aliens is the kind of flick that will have you holding onto your popcorn and your date to keep you from leaping out of your seat. An action/adventure/thriller, this sequel is more intensely scary than the original, and what plot flaws there are have been smoothed over with special effects and precisely timed shockers. Rated R...½

Nothing in Common is a good title for this flick, as it bears little resemblance to the comedy we expect from stars Jackie Gleason and Tom Hanks. A woeful tale about divorce and the generation gap, it would have been less confusing, to the audience and the cast, if this were a clear cut comedy or a drama, but not a dramady. Rated PG ::

About Last Night could be the signature film of love stories for this decade, as it deals with young people afraid of commitment. The language is as raw as the sentiment, but the humor alternates nicely between intelligent and intense. Rated R. *** 1/2

Ruthless People is a fast paced, coarse, irreverent comedy that never loses its ability to make you laugh, even as the antics become more outrageous. A modernization of O. Henry's "Ransom of Red Chief," it's scurrilous Danny DeVito who refuses to pay two desperate young kidnappers to release his wife, a flashy, loud-mouthed Bette Midler. Rated R. ♦♦♦♦

LAD is a program developed by the Chapter 766 Committee of the Eastern Middlesex Council for Children that is presented by parent volunteers. The program was started at the Greenwood School in April, 1986 and was met with much enthusiasm by the students, teachers and volunteers. LAD hopes to provide children (3rd and 4th graders) with the experiences, knowledge and insights which can foster sensitivity and willingness to accept and help the disabled people they will meet in an evermore integrated society.

Volunteers work with small groups of children (4-5) in sharing simulated disabled experiences. All training materials, guidelines, scripts, etc. are provided.

We are presently seeking volunteers to work on our second unit "Hearing Deficits" to be presented to the 4th Grade classes in late October. For further information call: Muriel Campbell 246-0986, Gwen Mosier 245-4432, Nancy McCarthy 665-3563, Marie Cassidy 245-5267.

The program is divided into five units: Visual Deficits, Hearing Deficits, Physical Limitations, Mental Retardation and Invisible Disabilities.

TIPS ON TRIPS

IT PAYS TO READ THE ADS

Picture this: two people sit next to each other on a plane. The seats seem identical, yet one passenger paid $50 less for her seat than did the other one. What accounts for the difference in passenger fares is mostly likely not the quality of the seat, but the quality of attention that was paid to ads running in newspapers this holiday season.

For example, your holiday vacation transportation can cost less this year if you take advantage of a special offer spotlighted in print ads run by the people at a leading camera company and a major airline.

Here's the offer: If you buy a Pentax P3, A3000 SLR with a Pentax lens or new Ultra Sport rangefinder camera between now and December 31, 1986, you qualify for a travel certificate from United Airlines worth $50 toward round trip air travel in the U.S. If you buy an Auto Sport rangefinder camera, you get a round trip air travel certificate worth $25. The travel ticket is good through December 17, 1987, with some restrictions.

They call the offer "The Sky's The Limit," but there's no limit, most would agree, on the fun you can have on your holiday trip...or the creative purposes you can put your new camera to as you capture a lifetime of memories.

Questions about the promotion and Pentax cameras can be answered by calling the "Sky's the Limit" helpline at 1-800-423-6983. You might also enjoy a free brochure on travel tips, covering the basics of travel photography as well as hints about making travel simpler and more enjoyable. You should write to Pentax Corp., Dept. C.P., 35 Inverness Drive East, Englewood, CO 80112.

Plague of Plastic

Scientists estimate that more than one million seabirds and 100,000 marine animals, including porpoises, seals, and sea lions, in addition to marine turtles, die each year from either getting tangled in or eating plastic debris in the ocean. During COASTWEEK '86 (through October 13), hundreds of people in New England will fight against this "plague of plastic" by organizing to pickup plastic discarded on beaches.

The plastic plague comes in two major forms, plastic products such as eating utensils, plastic bags and sheets, food containers and fishing nets, and industrial plastic pellets, the raw material that is eventually melted down and formed into consumer products. Merchant ships are the main perpetrators of product debris - an estimated 639,000 plastic bags and containers are tossed overboard daily. Fishing vessels and beachgoers also contribute to the problem.

Although there is little evidence about the effect on marine life that eats plastic, scientists have found examples of starvation (plastic in the stomach is not eliminated, tricking the digestive system into thinking it is perpetually full), intestinal blockage, ulceration, internal injury, and decreased physical well-being or reproductivity.

Marine birds and animals are being trapped by the thousands in lost or abandoned fishing nets which may continue to "ghost fish" indefinitely.

For more information on the activities of COASTWEEK '86, call Madeleine Hall-Arber, MIT Sea Grant Program, 253-7136 or the League of Women Voters, VPhone 357-5880 in Boston, (800) 882-1649 outside of Boston.

The World Pumpkin Weigh-off, an annual event to select the world's largest pumpkin, squash, and watermelon, will take place on October 13, at the Topsfield Fair from 11 AM to 1 PM. The contest is co-sponsored by the World Pumpkin Confederation, and Peters Professional Plant Food, which will offer prize monies totalling $2,000.

Entries must be received on an official entry form at least two hours prior to weigh-in time. For more information, contact Jayne Meyers, Peters Professional Plant Food, 62 Whittemore Avenue, Cambridge, MA 02140.

Broadway's Hottest

TANGO ARGENTINO, one of the most extraordinary hits of any season, continues its National Tour, opening at the Shubert Theatre, 265 Tremont St., Boston, for two weeks only, Tuesday, Oct. 21 through Sunday, Nov. 2.

TANGO ARGENTINO features the world's most renowned tango artists. Each of the thirty dancers, singers, and musicians of the company, all from Buenos Aires, is a star in his or her own right and each has a unique, special style of performing tango.

The success of TANGO ARGENTINO has fostered a new kind of madness - "tango-mania". The return to ballroom dancing and sensuous fashion has been credited to this show. The original cast album of TANGO ARGENTINO is out and is available on Atlantic Records.

For charge tickets and group sales call Telecharge at 1-800-233-3123. For more information, call the Schubert Theatre at 426-4520.

If you know of an event of interest to all, write, care of this local newspaper and tell COMING ATTRACTIONS all about it. We look forward to your submittals. Our joke of the week is from the Brande Handbook of Humor.

Customer: "What! Five hundred dollars for that antique? Why, I priced it last week and you said three hundred and fifty."

Dealer: Yes, I know, but the cost of labor and materials has gone up so!"
